

Gloom Grips World as Leaders Square Off

LONDON (Reuters) — The world waited anxiously Monday night as the Paris summit talks threatened to explode into failure over the Soviet-American quarrel about spy flights over Russia. Officials and others here and in capitals throughout the world expressed their regrets at the clash—and their hopes that the long-awaited talks would continue despite it. A wave of gloom gripped Paris as crowds of citizens going home from work Monday night gathered outside newspaper stands reading headlines. Their faces were anxious. Similar scenes had not been seen since the Korean War began. The official mood was sombre in Bonn in view of the dangers over Berlin if the conference failed.

A commentator in Communist East Berlin said Russia had made no threat or ultimatum but merely a "justified demand." "Either there will be honorable negotiations or none at all," he added.

Even before the blowup, pessimism about the East-West conference had been expressed widely in the wake of reports on the "tough" line Soviet Premier Khrushchev took Sunday during the preliminary talks in the French capital.

British newspapers were plunged into gloom in Tuesday morning editions. (See picture below.) The right-wing London Daily Mail says if the conference fails "it will be because Mr. Khrushchev wants it to." The Conservative London

Daily Telegraph says "The ugly possibility must now be faced: That those Western leaders who argued for a change of Western attitudes to the Soviet Union, and a jettisoning of the Dulles policy of toughness, may have badly miscalculated."

Resist, Canada Urges

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canadian leaders yesterday urged the Western Big Three to resist Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's "belligerent" attempts to break up the Paris summit meeting at its outset. Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, backed by opposition spokesmen, took sharp exception to Khrushchev's threat to quit the Paris meeting unless President Eisenhower apologized for the U-2 spy plane incident. Diefenbaker called the Soviet premier's action "intimidation." Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson termed it "an apparently brutal ultimatum." Both Diefenbaker and Pearson said world hopes demanded that the meeting not break down. Socialist House Leader Hazen Argue called for an end to "spying, threatening and stalling."

Five-Ton Satellite Dead On

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russian scientists said their space-ship satellite was dead on course Monday night, a glowing beacon in night skies as it encompassed the globe every 91 minutes. (See Page 34.) The equipment-jammed control cabin with its dummy pilot was flashing back information and paving the way for the first manned space flights, they said. The nearly five tons of satellite ranged between 194 and 230 miles above the earth's surface, whirling over major cities of the west with clock-work regularity. Still unanswered, however, was when the Soviet scientists will release the pressurized cabin for its flaming re-entry into the earth's heavy atmosphere. A Russian scientist visiting England said Monday the release could be expected within days. The satellite, launched Sunday on the eve of the Paris summit talks, dominated the news in Monday's edition of the Communist newspaper Pravda. It contrasted the peaceful aims of the Soviet space experiment with the "aggressive" nature of the American espionage flight over the Soviet Union May 1.

Water Flown To Flood Area

FOLEYET, Ont. (UPI)—Health officials yesterday ordered residents of this flood-stricken town not to drink the community's water supply and fresh water was flown in from Timmins, Ont., by ever-shuttling planes. (See other flood stories on Page 3.)

Khrushchev Plane All Set to Leave

PARIS (UPI)—Nikita Khrushchev threatened today to return to Moscow later in the day unless President Eisenhower "recognizes that the U.S. made a mistake in violating our frontiers."

PARIS (UPI)—Great Britain undertook the desperate role of peacemaker last night to save the summit conference, threatened with collapse in its opening hours by Premier Nikita Khrushchev's "insulting" attack on President Eisenhower and the United States.

After hearing Khrushchev cancel his invitation to Eisenhower to visit Russia because of the U-2 spy plane incident and threaten to stage a walk-out, Eisenhower accused the Soviet premier of coming all the way to Paris just to sabotage the conference. There were unofficial reports that ever since its arrival Saturday, Khrushchev's plane had been ordered refueled and ready for return to Moscow tomorrow.

See also Pages 7, 31 and 33.

FRANTIC EFFORT
Prime Minister Harold Macmillan undertook a frantic round-robin series of meetings with all of the other Big Four leaders in the attempt to save the conference and it was reported that Khrushchev after a 1½-hour private conference had given him a statement to be delivered to Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle in the morning.

Eisenhower was openly angry over Khrushchev's outburst over the U-2 spy incident. At one point he appeared disgusted when the Soviet premier, an athlete, exclaimed, "As God is my witness, my hands are clean and my soul is pure" when it came to espionage activities. FRIENDLY TALKS Macmillan conferred for more than 1½ hours with Khrushchev in the Soviet embassy last night. A British spokesman said they would meet again today after the Big Three western leaders' get-together at 2 a.m. (PDT). When he left, he was escorted to the door by Khrushchev, Soviet defence minister Rodion Y. Malinovsky, and ambassador Sergei Vinogradov. Khrushchev shook hands with Macmillan on the doorstep. Their handshake was a striking contrast to the coolness Eisenhower and Khrushchev displayed toward each other. They did not shake hands either at the beginning or the end of the Big Four meeting this morning.

ILL-ATEASE
A member of the U.S. delegation said Khrushchev, seated at Eisenhower's right, seemed ill at ease and tense as he delivered his 40-minute tirade. Eisenhower sat poker-faced throughout. Eisenhower left his plans in abeyance and had not yet decided whether to try to continue the conference or go home, although he said he preferred to remain in Paris. The Western Big Three scheduled a meeting this morning but a planned lunch including Khrushchev as a guest was cancelled. American officials said

Cigaret Addict's Diary Now We Try Suppression

Celebrated reporter Terry Hammond, along with scores of other Victorians, is trying to kick the cigarette habit with the help of the Colonist's recent series of articles by Arthur King Hammond. In three parts—A Day, A Week, A Month—Hammond describes another step in his withdrawal.

By TERRY HAMMOND
Q-Day minus four.

During the four days which remain before you free yourself of the beastly old cigarette habit you may find yourself increasingly preoccupied with the ordeal ahead.

If this is the case you must practice thought suppression. But before you do, I must point out that thought suppression comes in about a dozen different sizes (Junior Miss to Senior Men's Broad Jump).

If you go all the way with thought suppression you will simply become a babbling idiot and we won't let you play any more.

EASY THOUGHTS
And if you don't go far enough you will only be able to suppress the really easy thoughts like income tax, mother-in-law, garden spading, haircuts, helping-with-the-dishes, etc., and not the harder ones like smoking or girls. Naturally, if you are going to try to suppress an uppermost thought like smoking you are going to have to have an uppermost thought to take its place. You can't simply stop thinking about smoking one second and start thinking the next second about how there seem to be more yellow-billed, bandy-legged, Arctic puffins than usual this year. You have to find a substitute thought which you can really get your teeth into. If you've ever tried getting your teeth into a yellow-billed, bandy-legged, Arctic puffin you will know what I mean, and this year's crop is the worst yet.

LOOK AT WATCH
With this year's puffins you couldn't suppress a sudden inclination to look at your watch. What you have to do is conjure up something which is just as important to you as smoking but which is not smoking. Probably you can think of a dozen things. I certainly hope you do. Personally I have racked my brains and I am unable to come up with a single one. But I haven't; I've run up all the time I am racking my brains I am not really thinking about smoking, I am just proving to myself how nothing seems to compare with it in importance.

Our Taxes Cut to $1 Sacred Tells Prairies

NEUDORF, Sask. (CP)—Herb Bruch, Social Credit member of the British Columbia legislature for Esquimalt, says most home-owners in British Columbia pay only $1 in municipal tax. Mr. Bruch told a public meeting here Friday night that this low tax is made possible through a "home owner grant," by the Social Credit government.

Big Firms Aren't Big, Bad Wolves

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian M. J. Foley said Monday, will have to get rid of the notion that big companies are big, bad wolves.

One-Pound Baby Born in B.C.

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP)—One of the smallest babies ever born in British Columbia is holding her own in hospital here. The girl, born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hobbs, weighed just over one pound.

"The public distrusts big corporations seemingly because they are big," he told the annual dinner of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce.

"I know it is part of the folklore of children's stories that all giants are cruel and everything that is bad is also big."

"But it is dangerous to carry this folklore into adult life, because without any doubt many big companies will have to get still bigger if they are going to meet successfully the economic challenges of the future."

Mr. Foley is president of B.C.'s biggest forest company, MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

"The tasks companies would have to undertake in the future and the problems to be solved would be too large for 'small-scale solutions,' he said.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

I've been looking at the first copies of my new book, "How to Write, Speak, and Think More Effectively" (Harper). It is, of course, a self-improvement book—but I honestly think that it's different and more useful than earlier books of this type.

The history of self-help books is long and fascinating. First in the field was "The Pursuit of Knowledge Under Difficulties" by George L. Craik, published in 1830. Its main advice was to study, read the classics and, somehow, armed with this self-education,

Famous Lecture

The next milestone was "Acres of Diamonds," the famous lecture by Russell H. Conwell, given first in 1870 and repeated some 6,000 times to audiences in the millions. Conwell's emphasis was not so much on studying but on cultivating your own backyard where in due time you'll discover "acres of diamonds." The image of success, by that time, was the small farmer who gets rich by concentrating on one

Positive Thinking

Finally, in the 1940's and 50's, we've had "positive thinking" and Dr. Norman Vincent Peale. This is still more or less the Dale Carnegie approach, but now it's all based on faith. I think the 1960's call for a new kind of book. About 90 per cent of our population consists now of employees, mostly of large corporations; the road to success is no longer by way of a substitute college education, or a carefully tended small business, or a job as a commission salesman.

If you want to get ahead now, you'll have to do it by the simple process of being good at your job and rising through the ranks. Try to be a "positive thinker" in a large organization and you'll accomplish nothing but attract attention to yourself as a nuisance.

The best self-help today, it seems to me, is a sincere effort to do the best you can at your daily work—to concentrate not on your personality but on your performance. That's what I am trying to teach people in my new book.

Frantic Macmillan Tries To Salvage Summit Ruins

Khrushchev's 40-minute harangue was "insulting" in its demands that the United States apologize for spy plane flights and punishment of those "guilty." All such flights must cease, he said. Western diplomats said his undiplomatic tirade torpedoed the summit he himself originally had urged.

Eisenhower said intelligence flights had been cancelled after the U-2 jet incident in Russia and he was willing to discuss the matter privately with the Russians in Paris. It was disclosed that the United States plans no more high-altitude surveillance flights over Russian territory. Eisenhower thus left the door open for Khrushchev to back down gracefully and continue with the summit conference.

FINAL EFFORT
In a final effort to salvage the apparently blighted talks, Eisenhower added:

"In spite of this serious and adverse development, I have no intention whatsoever to diminish my continuing efforts to promote progress toward a peace with justice. This applies to the remainder of my stay in Paris as well as thereafter."

Eisenhower disclosed that he had hoped to propose in Paris a creation of an international system of aerial inspection under United Nations control—a broadening of his 1955 "open skies" plan which

Russia rejected—to eliminate "the necessity for all forms of espionage."

If Khrushchev refused to negotiate here, Eisenhower said, he would take the plan to the United Nations.

Khrushchev said bluntly that if the meeting collapses now it might be resumed in six to eight months—that is, when a new president has been elected in the United States.

He said the U.S. stand on espionage flights "doomed the conference to failure in advance."

DO-IT-OR-ELSE

Khrushchev demanded an end to all American intelligence flights. These are his do-it-or-else words:

"It stands to reason that if the U.S. government were to declare that in the future the United States will not violate the state borders of the U.S.S.R. with its aircraft, that it deplores the provocative actions undertaken in the past, and will punish those directly guilty of such actions, which would assure the Soviet Union equal conditions with the powers, I, as head of the Soviet government, would be ready to participate in the (summit) conference and exert all efforts to contribute to its success."

His words were milder, however, as he withdrew his invitation to Eisenhower to visit Russia next month.

He said Russia "at present cannot express cordiality" to the American leader because of the spy plane shot down May 1.

He said arrangements for the trip should be made at a later date when "conditions of the visit are mature."

During his 40-minute harangue, Khrushchev said the United States had threatened to continue spy flights over Russia and he made it crystal clear that on Eisenhower's reply to his demands would depend whether this summit meeting continued.

Eisenhower said Khrushchev was under an "evident misapprehension" when he said the United States intended to continue the flights.

"In point of fact, these flights were suspended after the incident and are not to be resumed," Eisenhower said. "Accordingly this cannot be the issue."

RED SPIES

Further more, Eisenhower said "as is well known, not only the United States but most other countries are constantly the targets of elaborate and persistent espionage by the Soviet Union."

He said he had come to Paris to seek agreement with Russia on mutual inspection programs and "I see no reason to use this (plane) incident to disrupt the conference."

The initial talk, billed as private, never did get down to the summit issues of disarmament, Berlin and East-West relations.

Erasmus Wants Refugees

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters)—South Africa is negotiating with Britain for the extradition from neighboring British protectorates of 20 "named Communists—known to have been behind the recent disturbances" in this country, Justice Minister Francois Erasmus announced Monday.

Erasmus made the disclosure in parliament where he was asked: "And if the British government refuses?"

He replied: "I do not think the British government will be so unwise as that."

Until the government gets hold of the 20, Erasmus said, it will not be possible to repeal current emergency regulations.

Criminal or Not?

Driving Law Tested In Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP)—Provincial careless driving laws were attacked in the Supreme Court of Canada Monday on grounds they invade federal jurisdiction over criminal law by providing a penalty for criminal negligence.

The court is hearing an appeal by Winnipeg motorist James Patrick O'Grady in which the validity of the careless driving section of the Manitoba Highway Traffic Act is being contested.

Sidney Palkin of Hamilton,

Ont., counsel for Mr. O'Grady, said the provinces have a duty to regulate highway traffic for the protection of the public. However, he said, the penalty provided for an infraction of the Manitoba law against careless driving is criminal law, within the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal parliament.

While the case before the court involves the Manitoba careless driving law, the court's judgment will affect all provinces. All provincial careless driving laws are similar to Manitoba's.

For this reason Mr. O'Grady's bid to have the Manitoba law declared invalid is being opposed by the provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Nova Scotia. The federal government is siding with the provinces.

The appeal is being heard by a full court of nine judges, headed by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin.

Mr. O'Grady had applied in the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench for a writ prohibiting a magistrate from trying his case. This court dismissed his application and the decision was upheld by the Manitoba Court of Appeal.

Commons to Check Research, Uranium

OTTAWA (UPI)—The House of Commons unanimously approved last night a motion to set up a select committee to study the policy, operation and expenditures of the National Research Council, Atomic Energy of Canada and Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited.

The opposition used the motion to revive its strong criticism of the government's handling last year of U.S. uranium contracts which led to depressed prospects for Canadian uranium production centres. Opposition Leader Lester Pearson said the U.S. had "begged" Canada to proceed with all speed to develop every ounce of uranium because the mineral was needed for defence purposes. He said there was no talk then about over-production.

The tiny centre of Peterbell, astride the CNR line on the northern boundary of Chapleau Game Reserve and with a population of 50, sits below the dam on the Missinabi River.

"The dam... could go out any time," a lands and forests department spokesman said. If it goes, the weight of Missinabi Lake will surge through the community.

More than 130 persons have been flown out of Foleyet—the

In Happy Conjunction

A FORTUNATE combination of circumstance will bring together today one of the main public appearances of Governor-General Vanier and the observances of Empire and Citizenship Days in the capital of British Columbia. Massed school choirs of 1,000 members will be heard in front of the Legislative Buildings at the colorful I.O.D.E. ceremony this morning; where His Excellency and Mrs. Vanier will be welcomed by Premier W. A. C. Bennett on behalf of British Columbia. The plinth of the statue of Queen Victoria will be decorated by the smaller school children with gay spring flowers, while a school band will play appropriate airs at the ceremony.

Smiling skies, with abatement of a brisk wind which blew in the morning, graced the arrival of the viceregal party early last evening as HMCS Fraser swept in to a landing at the inner harbor. The scene off Dallas Road as trim RCN ships lined their rails to cheer ship for the Governor-General a few minutes before, and the eager crowds dotting every headland and vantage point on the route of arrival set the tone for the visit. When Victorians are pleased they make holiday in a whole-souled and spectacular way.

While the events of this morning are largely for the benefit of the school children of the community, their big parade of the year, they will include the citizenship observances which each year take on a richer meaning. The multiple occasion will make the scene memorable for participants and spectators alike, as Victoria honors two Queens and the Governor-General, in a setting which is unique in Canada.

Pacific Northern Railway

IN his mainland announcement on Friday Premier Bennett filled in the names of five companies who between them will own the initial stock of the Pacific Northern Railway, the projected 700-mile road to be constructed from Summit Lake to the Yukon border. Mr. Bennett did not say when construction will start or any target date for the completion of the project; nor did his announcement touch on the financing of the railway. The premier indicated however that the new company was in process of incorporation under the laws of the province, with a board of 12 directors and the five participating companies on an equal footing in initial share ownership.

Of the five participating firms two are Canadian, two registered in the United Kingdom, and one—Perini Ltd., of Toronto—a Canadian affiliate of the large American construction concern. The inclusion of the Wenner-Gren (B.C.) Development Company at the head of the list was no surprise. A. V. Roe (Canada) Ltd., is the large Canadian subsidiary of a leading British aircraft and steel group. Associated Electrical Industries Ltd., of London, and Cleveland Bridge and Engineering Co. Ltd., of Darlington, are prominent English firms. Each of the five companies is to have two directors on the PNR board; in addition to Sir Roy Dobson and Lord Tweedsmuir, whose names had already been associated with the enterprise.

While the incorporation of a company to set about construction of the railway is a necessary prerequisite to commencement of the undertaking itself this leaves some important details to be filled in. Seven-hundred-mile railways, even when privately owned, are not built without application of considerable risk capital. The special nature of four of the five firms named—all identified with heavy industry—suggests that they will be concerned in the actual construction. But what the timetable may be has not yet been disclosed.

Poor Attendance Record

ONE afternoon last week just before the 6 p.m. adjournment there were only 19 members in their seats in the national Parliament. That was actually one less than the quorum required, set at the low minimum of less than a tenth of the total seats. Probably many MPs merely left the chamber in a hurry to beat the closing hour; but 40 minutes before that, when a vote was taken, only 81 members were present.

There are numerous reasons why MPs might not be in their seats at various times, but any organization which could summon no more than a third of its membership would not think its business was being well arranged. The occasions, in fact, when all members of Parliament are in the Commons—there are 265 seats—are few and far between.

Parliamentary correspondents in Ottawa have commented frequently on the habit of eastern members, for instance, dodging off for a Thursday-to-Tuesday weekend, and since the day in question last week was a Friday that would account for some of the missing members. MPs have other duties, also, in addition to listening to or taking part in House debates, which cannot be escaped. They have constituency matters to attend to, government officials to consult, library or research reference to undertake and so on. Quite obviously they cannot be in their seats all the time the House is sitting.

Even so however attending to the parliamentary aspect of their responsibilities seems sometimes to get scant attention. Members complain of the long sessions nowadays and probably with some reason, although if some of the processes were speeded up they might find their own cure. In any case they should be able to do better, at any given moment, than have only 19 out of 265 seats filled. They need not wonder if respect for their labors takes a drop when apparently the Commons is often more empty than full.

Interpreting the News

'Comradely Courts' Busy

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

It is estimated that one Soviet citizen in every hundred is a part-time policeman.

In comparable terms, that means that the Soviet Union needs about 15 times as many policemen to insure law and order in its people's paradise as does the United States.

These and other revealing statistics dealing with events behind the carefully guarded iron curtain have been gathered by Radio Free Europe, whose transmitters beam news of the Western World to the captive nations and whose staff also spends considerable time culling through Communist publications and monitoring Communist broadcasts.

The idea of part-time policemen was introduced in the Soviet Union in 1958, and since has been taken up by the satellite states. In the Soviet Union alone, it is estimated that these people's militia as they are called total about 2,500,000 persons.

In the heavy jargon of Communism, their job is to fight against "immoral manifestations" among the people, and they have the right to invade private homes in pursuit of their duties.

"Immoral manifestations" run the gamut from too-free criticism of the regime to absenteeism and larceny on the job.

Working hand in hand with these part-time policemen are the "comradely courts" which are informal affairs in which the delinquent worker's fellows undertake to brain-wash him.

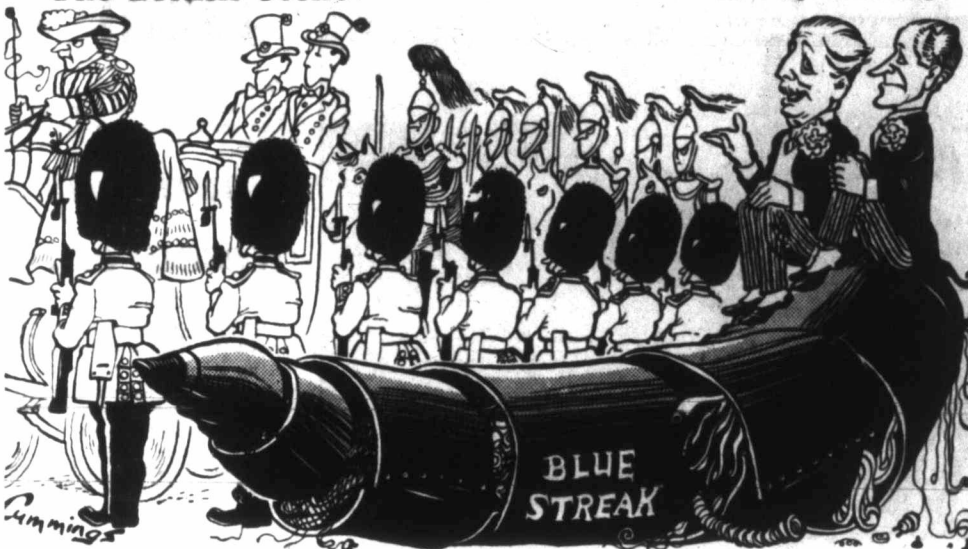

These courts, too, are widespread throughout the satellites.

The figures revealing the extent to which a police state must go to enforce its discipline also disclose a somewhat less than ideal attitude among many of the workers.

One comradely court dealt with a worker who threw an unfriendly iron bar at his foreman.

Many of the cases cited dealt with drunkenness. Others disclosed widespread absenteeism, a reluctance to "volunteer" for overtime work, and a most non-Communist desire to turn a fast ruble on the black market with goods pilfered from the local factory.

PERSONAL names are not of themselves peculiar even if some of them appear odd, since if we had no names we would require numbers and these would become astronomical. Even more so than federal budgets.

It is when the names are compressed into initials they may betray peculiar preferences. I came across the name of an admiral recently, for example, A. E. M. B. Something-or-Other. This seemed such a lot of initials it set me wondering. Offhand I should think so many initials would be a drawback in a service career, but judging by his rank the admiral in question has not found them a handicap.

Unless we change our names by deed poll none of us has any control over those wished on us by our parents and at the moment of christening any noise ever made is not taken as an objection to the appellation being bestowed.

Not a few individuals, I daresay, are presented against their subsequent will with four, or perhaps even more, given names; but when they step out into the world they generally manage to keep all but two of them well out of sight.

I took a notion to check the habits of Canadians, Britons and Americans in this respect. The handiest guides were almanacs which list government officials, gentlemen who might be deemed the kind of people who would give initials the fullest flavor possible.

Canadians, it seems, are content with the capital letters of merely two Christian names. If they have more they keep the fact secret like a closet skeleton. A few Canadian officials put A.B.C. or its varied equivalent before the surname, and a few are like this writer and have only one given name to boast. The majority, however, use two initials.

The same can be said for the British, except that greater numbers of them are not averse to being known by three initials. Some Whitehall officials unabashedly list as many as the admiral, but they are in a decided minority. Two initials are by far the most popular.

There are so few single-initial men they look as though they lacked something, as of course they do.

The two-letter trait must be widespread for it turns up among the Americans also—but with a slight variation. The majority of Canadians and Britons are satisfied with a plain T.R., J.C., M.G., or such-like, but across the line the use of the first Christian name can be noted—John E., Richard S., Francis P., etc.

The Americans run mainly to the common English-speaking pattern of two-letter men. They have one habit, however, that is more marked among them than elsewhere. They like to tag "Junior" on individuals who have exactly the same names as their fathers. This seems logical if there is likelihood of confusion, but why the "Junior" should be perpetuated when the fathers are dead is rather puzzling.

In all three countries there are those who sign their names as J. Edgar Hoover does his, stressing the second name at the expense of the first. A random page in the local telephone directory shows there are some Victorians among them, and there is a fair sprinkling of one-letter individuals here too.

The local preference however is for the double initial.

When it comes to personal names there is thus a close affinity between Canada, Britain and America. So that the main peculiarity of English-speaking peoples is that they agree so well on the number of initials to be used.

Reports from Ottawa

PARLIAMENT'S failure to plow through its legislative program with speed and despatch is causing concern that I believe is quite needless.

Some critics and observers decry Parliament's pedestrian pace as evidence that Parliament is inefficient. They deprecate the time spent — just about half the session so far — in windy and repetitious speeches. For example, critic Tim Creery of the Montreal Star suggests a cut of as much as two-thirds in the time allocated to debates on the Throne speech, the budget, and government supply motions.

However, I do not agree that speed in passing bills is the proper measure of Parliament's efficiency. Nor do I infer that Mr. Creery does — simply that the modern mania for "efficiency" causes people to overlook the prime purpose of Parliament, which is to protect the people from possibly unwise or harmful decisions and actions by our rulers. The way Parliament does this is by talking about what the government is doing or is not doing. Sometimes it seems that this talk is interminable. Time is being wasted. Parliament is inefficient. But I suggest that it is a peculiarly efficient type of inefficiency.

Not to belabor the obvious, if we wanted efficiency above all else we'd have a docile Parliament like the Spanish Cortes, which meets briefly only to rubber stamp the Franco government's decrees. Or like the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. But we wouldn't have democracy.

Curtains Drawn Aside

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

THERE is a little mild laughter in this ancient land as the result of Mr. Khrushchev's successful military engagement with the United States Intelligence aircraft and the brilliant diplomatic use he has made of it, even to the point of fully understanding that President Eisenhower would not know anything about it.

Possibly a few people in these islands are shocked that such goings on exist but, as Mr. Khrushchev suggested, Russia had some pretty good photographs too and one may suppose that he was not referring to pictures of Russia. There is no doubt at all that he has some good ones of the United Kingdom and it would be foolish to suppose that the liberty had not been reciprocated.

Diplomatically Mr. Khrushchev's triumph has been in shooting the aircraft down and capturing the pilot on the eve of the summit conference. It has put the United States on the defensive, which from Russia's point of view, is a very potent starting point. It removes a lot of the smug hypocrisy from the discussions and may well bring a little more realism into world affairs.

Equally, of course, it would be absurd to exaggerate the incident. The gathering of intelligence, the peace-time title given to the more dangerous wartime necessity of spying, has been going on ever since biblical days and only a starry-eyed idealist ever thought otherwise.

The crime in this case is not, of course, in doing the job but being caught at it—and caught in a way which any probationer detective realizes is effective, the giving of partial information on the assumption that it is all that is known and then facing the victim with the truth. There is nothing for it but to "come clean," as indeed the United States did. No doubt the sentence will be pronounced in Paris—along with an uncomfortable judicial lecture.

The question of whether it will Parliament's changeless function is to protect the people against the excesses of misuse of power — in early days by kings; in latter days by governments. Inasmuch as uncritical government majorities dominate Parliament, the proper functioning of Parliament's critical role depends on the opposition's willingness and ability to criticize. And that means talk. Many argue that the opposition can make its points much more succinctly, without dragging Parliament through many hours of repetitious debate. But this is a matter that must be judged by the result achieved rather than by the time taken. If the result is a viable democracy, and I think it is, then it might be folly to tamper with the system that produces it.

However, there is an area in which greater efficiency can be sought without risk to the "talk shop" function of Parliament. That is in giving parliamentary committees the authority, staffs and facilities they need to cope with involved problems in this era of great complication and diversification of government. A permanent committee secretariat, with a corps of experts, would greatly facilitate committee work.

Parliament's new committee to study how parliamentary procedure could be improved might well consider the waste of time and effort in the field of committee operations.

So far as operations in the Commons chamber are concerned, I suggest there is nothing seriously wrong with the system—only with the MPs. Their playing of politics at every opportunity this session is tiresome and time-consuming, and the Tories are as guilty as anyone. More so, because there are more of them.

really affect the conference is another matter. Obviously it is embarrassing to be caught, but we must remember that Mr. Khrushchev, whatever he is not, is a realist. He will not assume the air of injured innocence — more likely he will stress how clumsy America is — and no doubt he will use it to challenge any pledge that the United States is prepared to give on disarmament. Most people here feel that it will not endanger the talks but that it will give Russia a profound moral advantage for no other reason than Russia has not been caught at it whereas America has.

Britain, fortunately, is not directly affected. Again we have not been caught. We have no doubts at all that our Russian friends have from time to time taken a photographic look at these islands but we have not been able to catch them red-handed—but the whole question of "intelligence" may well be thrown into the melting pot.

The short answer of course is that if a nation has nothing to conceal it is not greatly concerned about foreign intelligence activities. If it has unsuspected strength it may indeed be helpful diplomatically to let the potential enemy know about it. The housewife with an immaculate kitchen rarely objects to the unexpected intrusion of a neighbor. She objects when it is messy and untidy. If we are to have disarmament obviously no one honoring agreements will object to surface or aerial reconnaissance. It may well be that Mr. Khrushchev will be able to score another point by emphasizing that the Americans have learned nothing from their intrusions. Whether true or not the United States is unlikely to deny it.

But obviously the "meteorological aircraft" will hang like a cloud over the summit. If it brings both sides to talk in terms of effective realism it may have done a great deal of good. After all it is one thing to know that someone is a slick operator and quite another to prove it. Russia has proven what most people knew; in so doing she has drawn aside the curtain facade of injured innocence which so often bedevils diplomacy.

Cock-a-Hoop

Russians and The Spy Plane

By CASSANDRA

MOSCOW — The Russians are quietly cock-a-hoop over the story of the American spy plane shot down deep in the heart of the Soviet Union.

I first heard of it from a twenty-seven-year-old Russian, who explained in amused and faintly taunting detail exactly what had happened.

I was at first incredulous. What was the height of the plane? Was it shot down, forced down or had it run out of fuel?

He came back with all the facts—subsequently confirmed by Washington.

His satisfaction was not exactly jubilant, but pretty solid.

When you are a Briton in Moscow and hear this sort of thing your first reaction is to discount it.

Or at least to make some kind of defensive conversation. He told me about the poisoned pin, and added with a genial grin that the pilot also had a supply of French jewelry and 7,000 rubles.

What would an innocent American airman bent only on peace, perfect peace, be doing with such luggage?

All this was a bit hard to take. I asked him if it was not a fact that such a story, if fabricated, might come in very useful to evil-minded persons immediately prior to the Summit meeting.

He replied, with infuriating patience, that indeed it might be so, but who was doing the poisoning?

How did I think the Russians felt about it all?

What would happen in the United States and in Britain if the Soviet Air Force was found wandering about over the Middle West or over Coventry at such a height?

I can only report to you from Moscow that those Russians I have spoken to are slightly incredulous that such a thing could have occurred.

Above all, they are just a bit jauntily that it was Washington and not Moscow that made this stupid and ineffectually ill-timed blunder.

Writing from within 50 yards of the Kremlin wall, I understand their attitude.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

ON visiting my new grandson on his arrival at the hospital, I was asked to sit in the waiting room for a few moments until the nurses were ready to introduce me to him through the plate glass window.

The waiting room was a small, chintzy little chamber with two chairs, a small table littered with mauling magazines, and a large inviting chesterfield. I chose the chesterfield, sank down on it and nearly hit the floor. It had hardly any springs at all, and I was jack-knifed in it when a white-coated doctor, passing the door, glanced in and rushed to my rescue.

"What the Sam Hill kind of a man-trap is that?" I demanded, as the doctor assisted me to my feet.

"Oh, that!" said the doctor. "This is the waiting room the expectant fathers sit in while awaiting the news. A lot of them are young fellows, fathers for the first time. They can't sit still. They keep jumping up, walking along the corridor and then coming back and falling limply all of a heap onto the chesterfield. No chesterfield can take that sort of treatment for long."

While he was explaining it to me, a pallid young man, about 190 pounds, pushed in past us and flung himself with a clunk into the chesterfield. Down he went, almost out of sight. But he didn't seem to notice.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

The patient was brought to the psychiatrist by friends who informed the doctor that the man was suffering from delusions that a huge fortune was awaiting him. He was expecting two letters which would give him the details involving deeds to a rubber plant in Sumatra and titles to some mines in South America.

"It was a difficult case and I worked hard on it," the psychiatrist told some colleagues "and just when I had the man cured the two letters arrived."

It is frequently pointed out that people rushing to the scene of an accident right after it happens cause a great deal of trouble. Even more troublesome are people who are rushing to the scene of an accident just before it happens.

Cross-Snapshots

Might I suggest that it could relieve world tension to allow both the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. to send unarmed photographers to take pictures of each other's territories.

Both countries are already aware of the locations of strategic bases and of large cities and airfields and personally I can't see that it does any harm or good to take pictures of an old familiar face.

Refusal on the part of one side or the other is a step backward toward possible destruction of humanity, and is not constructive.

60 Years to Pay

A proposal in the U.S. Congress to supply homes to anyone with little or no down payment is receiving serious consideration. Mortgage terms would be two per cent interest and 60 years to pay off the mortgage.

Why can't we have legislation passed here in Canada like this? This would provide homes for many people who have refused to pay the high rate of interest on present mortgages. Many veterans, too, have not been able to buy a house owing to the high down payment.

The resultant boom in the construction industry would definitely relieve the unemployment situation.

What Grounds?

The recent conference of prime ministers and other leaders of the British Commonwealth of nations, makes one wonder just what possible grounds there are for such countries as India, Ceylon, Pakistan (and soon, most likely, Ghana, Nigeria, etc.), to remain in the Commonwealth when they become independent.

Having repudiated the throne, with not even Christianity as a tie, should they not, as soon as they claim independence, automatically withdraw?

Sensible Outlook

I was most interested in the splendid letter from H. Bitterman. What a very sensible outlook he has on the matter of capital punishment. He is so very right. What a shame there are not more people in high places with similar views. Instead of weak-kneed, fuzzy-thinking people filled with sloppy sentiment who want to pat every murderer on the head and say, "The dear man, isn't he sweet? He didn't really mean it." Here's wishing that our laws could be administered with sternness and justice but without sentiment.

An Auditorium

It appears to me that if Victoria is to cover all the requirements for conventions, large and small, in one building, it will be a costly proceeding. The city of Vancouver will offer very strong competition, particularly for the large conventions, and the United States is also in the field for these functions. We are not in the position of Calgary or Edmonton, where the Alberta government provided, free of cost, very fine auditoriums.

I should think that in the aggregate, we could do very well in catering to a greater number of smaller groups than a few large ones.

It can be taken for granted that an auditorium with a sloping floor is no use for convention sessions, dances, banquets, sports, or exhibitions. On the other hand, a building with a level floor is of little use for entertainment. Is it not possible that the Royal Theatre would in part, be quite suitable for our entertainment needs for some time to come, and that with the addition of a new building in the vicinity, suitable for all other purposes, we would be well equipped to handle most of the conventions that are likely to come to Victoria, providing that we make up our minds to adopt a more open approach to the needs of tourists coming to our city.

Composed, in the main, of a population of civil service residents, retired people, a military and naval station, and small industries, we must look outside for additional revenue to meet our maintenance and development costs.

Why are tourists restricting their stay in Victoria to a very few days? We still have much to learn in creating attractions that will hold our visitors for a longer stay in our fair city.

Khrushchev's Shuffles Favor Reformers

Fall of Conservatives Shows Policy 'Thaw' May Be Near

A world-famous writer on Communism, Isaac Deutscher was himself a prominent Polish Communist until he broke with Stalin in 1935. In addition to many books, his syndicated articles have been published in the press throughout the world. He has been a world news columnist on such London papers as The Economist and The Observer. This is the second of four articles.

By ISAAC DEUTSCHER

A huge bone of contention in the Soviet Union has been the future of the conventional armed forces. Khrushchev favors their continued disbandment and gradual replacement by militias or home guards, and relies on the non-conventional forces, primarily on the technical troops equipped with missiles and rockets.

In anticipation of further army he is already disbanding its officers corps. (Under the reduction announced last January 120,000 men are being demobilized, but 250,000 of these—a startlingly high proportion—are officers.)

Thus another large, highly privileged and hitherto influential section of the "new class" is being hit hard and is being dispersed. The controversy over this has evidently not yet been resolved, but it forms the background to the retirement of some of the famous marshals of the last war.

There are also quite a few straws in the wind indicating a new "thaw" and further de-Stalinization in cultural and political policies. This may be the meaning of Mme. Ekaterina Furtseva's appointment to the post of minister of culture.

She has made her career in the struggle against the Stalinist die-hards and has repeatedly shown her zeal for further de-Stalinization even more frankly than it has suited Khrushchev.

On the other hand she ceases to be secretary of the central committee; and so while she assumes an important office in the government, she loses influence in the party hierarchy. It therefore remains to be seen just how much she will be able, as minister of culture, to promote a freer atmosphere in the universities, in literature, and the arts.

Her appointment may be an honorific form of demotion calculated to "restore balance" in the presidium after the blows which Khrushchev has struck against the "conservatives."

On the whole, however, the changes have weakened the conservative Khrushchevites. Khrushchev's elimination from the presidium and the secretariat and Frol Kozlov's appointment to the secretariat—he is also first deputy prime minister—point in the same direction: Kozlov is as much reputed to be a progressive reformer as Kirichenko a conservative.

Another result of the reshuffle is the strengthening of Khrushchev's personal hold on the secretariat. Until recently most members of the presidium were also secretaries of the central committee.

This allowed them to take policy decisions and also to supervise the carrying out of the decisions on the organizational level. Membership in both the presidium and the secretariat gave them greater weight in either of these two bodies; and up to a point this limited Khrushchev's power.

At present the number of the secretaries of the central committee is reduced to four, and most members of the presidium have no share in the control of the organizational machinery. This automatically increases Khrushchev's power.

But none of those affected by these changes have been excommunicated or denounced and none have been expelled from the central committee.

MME. EKATERINA FURTSEVA
... too zealous?

The reshuffle found its epilogue in the resignation "for reasons of ill health" of Marshal Voroshilov from his presidential office. It will not be surprising if he "withdraws" also from the presidium.

Globe-Girdler, Bride Honored

Oil painting of 'round-the-world yawl Trekka was presented to her owner, John Guzzwell, and his new bride, the former Maureen Samways of Sydney, Australia, by Victoria Thermopylae Club only a few days after the globe-girdling skipper was named 1960 winner of the world's most coveted ocean cruising prize, the Joshua Slocum award. Painting, showing Trekka on her historic 15,000-mile cruise, is by Jack Hardcastle of Nanaimo. (Mrs. U. Jupp photo.)

Civil Defence Unit Will Give Out Pork

The civil defence organization has been made responsible for distribution of free surplus pork to the needy in Greater Victoria. CD controller Commodore V. S. Godfrey yesterday informed city welfare committee.

But details of quantity and time of arrival have not been received, he said, and therefore enquiries would be pointless.

Welfare Administrator William Hooson said about 4,500 persons in Greater Victoria would be eligible—persons on social assistance or receiving the provincial old-age pension bonus.

The committee asked Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson and Mr. Hooson to assist the CD organization, and Ald. M. H. Mooney suggested a service club might be interested in helping with the distribution.

Canada's Aid Pays Off

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Canada's diversified $200,000,000 aid program to India beginning to show some easily discernible results.

On March 25, Prime Minister Nehru inaugurated the Kundah hydroelectric project, built through the combined efforts of Canada and India. Some time this summer the Canada-India nuclear reactor will "go critical" near Bombay.

Canada has allotted $25,000,000 for the Kundah project, which eventually will produce 395,010 kilowatts of electricity in southern Madras state. The project makes use of several small streams of the Nilgiris Mountains and will irrigate several thousand acres of land.

Besides sharing in the construction of the project, Canada has provided turbines, generators, step-up power transformers and the construction equipment.

The nuclear reactor is something of an intellectual impact project which India proudly shows to its important visitors. So far this year, former Soviet president Voroshilov and UAR President Nasser have toured the almost-completed plant.

Canada and India are sharing the costs of the $20,000,000 reactor, with Canada supplying all the foreign exchange involved. The reactor will be used for research and testing when completed.

A large share of the Canadian aid is administered on a grant or non-repayment basis.

This is in striking contrast to Russian aid to India, which is almost completely in form of long-term, low-interest repayable loans.

The Canadian aid, which began in 1951, has been spread over a variety of projects.

Wheat, both in the form of grants and loans repayable in Canadian dollars, constitutes roughly one third of the $200,000,000 total. Other items are help in communications, plant protection, audiovisual education and milk distribution.

... well I finally beat the hacker... there's no denying real talent... don't know how he ever hits the ball with that swing of his... reminds me of my grandmother beating carpets... I should've been six strokes better tho'... imagine no mulligans... putt everything out... you'd think it was his last four bits... whew!... the old pressure was really on... time to relax... Trapped! Democrats Cry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — the blow to U.S. prestige in Paris, maintained a united front and refrained from public criticism while President Eisenhower was still in Paris. But their off-the-record comments showed the matter was developing into a major political issue. Behind the scenes, most Democrats and all Republicans, concerned over adds up to a great deal of bungling. Khrushchev has mousetrapped us. Our position has been weakened."

A Democrat, who has refrained from any public comment, said privately: "This has blown the Republican peace issue clear out of the water—or wherever you blow issues. And Eisenhower's image of infallibility has been damaged. The whole matter has been incredibly mismanaged and with statements, admissions and then admissions that the admissions were false. I think this is going to be the real whipping boy of the campaign."

Similar views were expressed by a midwestern Republican, who said: "The Democrats have been looking around for issues and I think they've got one now."

Some Republicans said that Nixon might be in for a tougher time because of his close links with Eisenhower administration policies which might now become a political liability.

Other political professionals voiced private opinions that the diplomatic blowup also might hurt Sen. John F. Kennedy, front runner among the Democratic presidential candidates, because of his youthful appearance. They reasoned that convention delegates might want an older man to deal with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Red China Pressing Nikita?

PARIS (UP) — Internal moves by "old guard" Communists and, above all, pressure from Red China may have been behind Premier Khrushchev's get-together with the West line, diplomatic sources said last night. Observers felt there may be deeper significance to Khrushchev's virtual ultimatum to hold the summit on his terms or not at all.

Spying Policy

End of Flights Another About-Face

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Eisenhower's summit declaration that intelligence flights over the Soviet Union have been suspended and are not to be resumed shows signs of being another sudden diplomatic about-face in U.S. cold war policy.

For almost a week, the White House and the state department left unchallenged an impression that the U.S. proposed to continue such flights despite Soviet protests and the shooting down of the U-2 May 1.

REPORTED IT

Newspapermen gained that impression—and reported it—after State Secretary Herter said Monday the U.S. had a responsibility to the free world to undertake such flights and that the U.S. "has not and does not shirk this responsibility."

POINT-BLANK

Asked point-blank if the Herter statement meant reconnaissance flights would continue, White said:

"As the statement says, it is incumbent upon us to take every means we can to guard against surprise attack."

NO SUCH ORDER

Hagerty said he knew of no such order by anyone. Just before Eisenhower left for Paris, informed authorities vigorously denied rumors picked up by Western diplomats that such a "retreat" might be ordered in the face of Khrushchev's demands.

ONLY OFFICIAL

The only official denial came Sunday afternoon when George Allen, director of the U.S. information agency, said there had been "a great misunderstanding" about the Herter statement.

Allen said Herter had stated "that there is an obligation and responsibility on the part of the U.S. government and of the free world to try to obtain information to guard against surprise attack, but he has not said we are going to continue to fly."

Nikita Red Like White Mac Blank

PARIS (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev Monday put on one of the most emotional displays of his spectacular public life.

Once in the summit meeting he waved his arms above his head and declared:

"As God is my witness, my hands are clean and my soul is clear!"

It is rare that a Russian leader calls on the Almighty.

When the Soviet leader left the meeting his face was crimson. He knew it, too. Pointing to his face, Khrushchev, in a loud voice, told his Russian chauffeur:

"Only my face is red. Eisenhower's is white. And Macmillan's has no color."

Only One Officer B.C.'s Limit For Family Court

The provincial government has declined to provide more than one probation officer for a Greater Victoria family and juvenile court at this time, Aid Mrs. Lily Wilson said yesterday.

The intermunicipal steering committee on establishment of the court, waiting for this information for several weeks, will meet "very soon" to consider the next steps to be taken, chairman Aid. M. H. Mooney said.

Original intention of the attorney general's department was to contribute one probation officer to the court, leaving the municipalities to pay the judge, court clerk, $1,800-a-year expenses of the probation officer and salaries and expenses of any further officers.

Committee members hoped the province would contribute more than one probation officer after Coun. Ainslie Worthington of Saanich reported a study of Vancouver's court indicated a minimum of three probation officers and an adult case worker would be needed in Greater Victoria.

But the attorney general's department has taken the stand that provision of the court is a municipal responsibility, Aid. Wilson said.

Columbia Parley 'Good'

It is now up to federal government and United States representatives to make progress in negotiations over development of the Columbia River, Lands and Forests Minister Williston of British Columbia said today.

Mr. Williston, B.C.'s chief negotiator on the project, said a day-long session Saturday between federal and provincial representatives was "very good."

"Clarification of our position for negotiations was made and we prepared for the next round," he said. The session didn't deal specifically with finances because "nobody knows the complete costs."

In Vancouver, Finance Minister Fleming said power development of the Columbia River in Canada "cannot now be far off."

He also repeated the federal government's willingness to "participate substantially" in financing storage reservoirs needed in the river in British Columbia under international agreement.

Queen, Philip To Visit West Africa

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will visit Ghana, Sierra Leone and Gambia in the late fall of next year, Buckingham Palace announced Monday.

The royal couple were to have visited West Africa late in 1959, but in August of that year the tour was postponed because Elizabeth was expecting her third child. Prince Andrew was born in February of this year.

Prince Philip visited Ghana alone from Nov. 23 to 29 in 1959.

Strontium 90 Killer in Humans Jumps When A-Tests at Peak

LONDON (Reuters)—Three British atomic energy authority scientists said Monday there is "quite strong" evidence of an increase in deadly strontium 90 in the human bone during 1956-1958—a period which ended with extensive nuclear testing.

The scientists said they concentrated their probe on the femurs of children since they felt that strontium 90 would be found only in recently formed bone.

Their report, published Monday, said that of 379 individuals examined, 179 were still-born children or infants less than one month old. The majority came from western Britain where contamination is higher than average.

The bones of the youngest subjects showed no appreciable rise until the end of 1958, a year in which a large num-

Contamination of the public diet showed little change, the report added, until the last six months of 1958.

Can you find 10 traffic hazards in this picture?

Look sharp! This quiz checks more than the acuteness of your vision. It also tests your judgment of what's right and wrong in this school traffic situation. Look again—then rate yourself against the list. But keep in mind that perceiving a traffic hazard is not enough. A good driver is always prepared to take instant action to avoid trouble.

Like all good citizens, Shell is interested in safety. We urge you to be alert, drive carefully, know the rules—and obey them. Remember: about 75% of all accidents are caused by the driver—not the car.

(Each hazard is located by letter and by number. For example, J5 indicates the location of the car in the lower center of the picture where lines from J and 5 would cross.)

- 1 Distracted driver has his mind and eyes off the road (J5, lower center)
- 2 Driver ignoring traffic crossing guard (H4, lower center)
- 3 Boys playing football in road (D5, center)
- 4 Boy on bicycle disregarding traffic (G3, lower left)
- 5 Double-parked station wagon unloading in street (F4, left center)
- 6 Jaywalker in traffic lane (G2, lower left)
- 7 Parked convertible obstructing pedestrian crosswalk (E4, left center)
- 8 Car entering parking lot improperly (C8, upper right center)
- 9 Car going wrong way in one-way traffic (J10, lower right)
- 10 Students in jalopy making illegal turn (C8, upper center)

(These are major hazards; there are others. If you found more than ten, congratulations!)

Big Innings Feature Play In Minor Baseball Leagues

Big innings features last night's minor baseball league action, which consisted of four Little League games and one Pony League clash.

In the National Little League, Rotary scored 10 runs in the third inning after opening with four in the first and three in the second, then wound up with five more runs in the fourth.

The game was called there with Rotary 22-2 winner over North Kiwanis, who got only one hit off Robbie Ross, who didn't need to be as tough as he was.

AND SO IT WENT

Pilots bested Elks, 10-7, in the Lake Hill Little League with a seven-run third inning. Merchants blasted Lions, 13-7, in the Victoria West Esquimalt League because of an eight-run third inning, and Merchants trounced Douglas Rotary, 21-7, in the Cadboro Bay Little League mainly because of two six-run innings.

Bases on balls and errors were the reasons in each case with no club managing to get as many hits as they did runs.

Sunday's action was featured by a no-hit, no-run game and a one-hit shutout.

Stan Thame, pitching for Victoria Optimists in the Capital City Colt League, blanked Northwesterns without a hit, 6-0. Richard Couch of the Britannia entry in the Fairfield Little League just missed the no-hitter as he blanked Victoria Tires, 5-0.

W. Don of Lions in the American Little League also had a one-hitter against Kinsmen but the losers managed to get three runs. Score was 8-3.

Bionda May Find It Tougher

Jack Bionda, who has won the Inter-City Lacrosse League scoring championship in each of the four full seasons he has played on the West Coast, may have to play just a bit harder if he is to make it five for five and four years in a row.

Now playing for his third ICLL club, Nanaimo, Bionda is still the man to beat and right in the thick of things, only two points behind teammate Skip MacKay, who tied for runner-up honors last season. But Bionda's early output of 18 points in the first six games is far below his pace of last season, when he broke all existing records with 144 points to average almost five points a game.

FEWER ASSISTS

Difference so far has been in assists. Bionda leads with 14 goals but so far his teammates have managed to convert his passes only four times. Leading playmakers so far are Victoria-veterans Whitey Severson and Al Gill, the key men in Victoria's so far potent odd-man play. Both have been credited with 11 assists and Gill has added seven goals to share second place in the individual scoring race with Bionda.

Vancouver's John Cervi, never much of a scorer in previous seasons, is fourth with 16 points and Nanaimo-veteran Don Ashbee next with 15. Gary Moore, who transferred from Nanaimo to Victoria, ranks next to Bionda in goals with 12 but has yet to receive credit for an assist.

SOPHOMORE LEADS

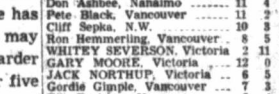

Sophomore Les Norman of New Westminster leads the goalkeepers with a shot-stopped percentage of .758. Vancouver-veteran Stan Joseph, who is sharing his club's goaling duties with ex-Victoria Don Hamilton, is next with .753.

Service Morale Falls

The "good employer" policy of previous federal governments apparently has been abandoned by the present administration, G. K. Sammon, president of the Department of Veterans Affairs Employees' national association, said yesterday.

Terms of recently announced wage increases given some of its members, said the association president, shows the federal government "completely indifferent to good employer-employee relations."

The increases announced Friday were for 1,569 cleaning service men, maintenance helpers, firemen laborers, elevator operators and stationary engineers was effective May 1.

That still, said Mr. Sammon, left 6,597 DVA employees waiting for a "long-overdue salary revision, and the morale of these employees has reached an all-time low."

Poor Cyclists Taught In Court

REGINA (CP)—Dangerous bicycling lands youngsters in court in Regina. But the object is education, not punishment.

When a youngster is seen cycling carelessly, police take his name and address. Later, an official letter is sent to the offender, requesting his appearance at the Saturday morning "court."

A presiding officer reads a formal-sounding charge. Then, with blackboards, charts and films, the youngsters are shown what they did wrong, and what might have happened.

Bury Your Colonist

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Tomatoes growing in a greenhouse are subject to quite a few infectious diseases—wilt, moulds, rots and the like, including one wicked virus which can be transferred to the plants from infected tobacco on the fingers of a cigarette smoking gardener.

We don't run across much of this disease trouble in our outdoor plants, although potato blight can be a problem in a wet season. Most of our grief with outdoor tomatoes is not from parasitic organisms but is physiological — from not growing them correctly — and nine-tenths stem from a fluctuating moisture supply in the soil.

A tomato plant doesn't need a great deal of moisture, but what it needs, it must have in a steady, never-ending, non-fluctuating supply. An abrupt change from dry to wet conditions causes the fruits to crack open. A similar sudden change from wet to dry sets up that infuriating blossom-end rot, in which each green tomato gets a tiny spot of rot on its bottom which spreads until the whole fruit is ruined.

Surface watering doesn't seem to be the whole answer to this problem, for it is difficult to maintain a nice, even degree of moisture in the soil—either you drown the roots or the surface only is wetted, with the lower roots dry. Some form of sub-surface irrigation is called for.

A Ross Root Feeder is ideal if it is used conscientiously throughout the growing season and, with this implement attached to your hose, you can inject water or a soluble fertilizer solution deep into the soil under the plants. Our grandmothers accomplished much the same thing by sinking a tin can with a small hole in the bottom alongside the plant and filling it up daily with water.

These systems involve constant attendance upon the plants and at holiday time things are apt to come unstuck. For some years now I have been providing my plants with a never-ending supply of subsurface moisture by a simple trick which is really very little trouble at all.

All I do is to bury a big wad of soggy wet newspaper deep down under each plant as I set it out. I soak my papers overnight—the Colonist produces a particularly delectable flavor in the tomatoes — and dump two big double handfuls of the soggy stuff in the bottom of a 14-inch deep hole. This is filled in with soil to the normal planting depth — about six inches.

The plants are set in the ordinary way and, in the course of planting, about three cupfuls of a weak fertilizer solution is poured in around the roots. When this drains away, the filling-in is completed with loose, dry soil on top.

Some of this solution trickles down to make contact with the wet newspapers, and this column of moist soil acts as a wick, keeping a supply of moisture percolating upward by capillary action throughout the growing season. I wouldn't say I never water my tomatoes, for I do give them a deep injection with my root feeder when I think of it, but I believe they would probably get along alright without it.

An essential part of this system is to insulate the soil surface with a heavy mulch of straw or lawn mowings to cut down evaporation and do away with the necessity of weeding.

Sinatra Laid a Bomb

Elvis Presley has the two requisites of a popular singing star: he's pretty and he can't sing. Of course, he's been away for two years in the army—or hadn't you heard?—and the art of non-singing has taken vast strides in his absence. Now, we've got Fabian, who is barely audible. The trouble with Presley is you can hear him.

Or maybe this is just wishful thinking. Elvis was welcomed home Friday on the Frank Sinatra show on ABC-TV to the accompaniment of wild squeals by teenage craves. You know something? I don't even think teenagers squeal as well as they did when I was a boy. (A wild rumor swept my neighborhood that those were canned squeals left over from Frankie's Paramount show in 1943. Not true. They can't blame these squeals on my generation.)

The show opened with the whole mob collaborating on one of my favorite songs, "It's Nice to Go Travelling," and from there the show degenerated rapidly to chaos. I'm afraid this is becoming the hallmark of the Sinatra show. They strike me as terribly unrehearsed, almost as if they're making them up as they go along. This applied especially when Bishop, Sinatra and Davis got together. This sort of ad libbing apparently convulsed audiences at the Sands in Las Vegas last winter. But it isn't really very good.

And while clobbering Elvis Presley, let's face up to the fact that Our Leader, which is what they kept calling Sinatra, is not singing very well either these days. Sinatra's voice is tired, very tired, and he seems to be straining, which he never did before. He isn't sustaining his notes and his breath control, one of the wonders of the world ordinarily, is out of whack.

But while the songs were badly sung, the rest of the show on the other hand was a shambles. There were two dance numbers by the Hansen group, one in Japanese costume, one in bathing suits on the beach, and both fairly awful. I don't know what's happened to TV choreography but it's getting awfully repetitive.

Now, as to Mr. Presley. He wore a pompadour, the likes of which I haven't seen outside of my mother's graduation pictures. But the girls wore them then, not the boys. The sideburns are gone but that towering mass of hair has more than taken its place in my disesteem. It is an attractive, unusual face, reminding me of a Renaissance prince. The cheeks are cherubic, the lids sleepy, the lips sensual.

I can understand why the girls want to squeal over him. I just can't understand why they want to hear him sing.

Sheilah Graham in New York

Irish Lass in Demand

NEW YORK (NANA)—Maureen O'Hara chatted with me on the telephone before taking off for Hollywood. "My personal reviews for 'Christine' were more than I could have dreamed of. But the show wasn't good enough," sighed the beautiful Irish lass. Maureen told me she will be going to Italy in August "to star in 'Nefiti'—or something like that." And she will be back on Broadway next season in a new musical, "I can have my pick," said Maureen blithely, adding, "I was really thrilled with my notices. When you come from Hollywood you get the feeling, 'show us.' It seems that my long-time friend really did."

My first lunch in Manhattan, after returning from London, was at the beautiful "Four Seasons," sitting across the way from Mayor Wagner's wife and a cheery foursome on a day off from roving-taking—Elizabeth Taylor, Eddie Fisher, Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner. The food was as exotic and exciting as anything I had in Europe. . . . Which reminds me: I did not see a single bagel in all Israel!

My TWA plane had to stop overnight in Gander because of weather conditions in New York and the east coast. Please, Mr. Hughes, build a hotel there! Those converted army barracks are unsuitable. All the other jets stop in Gander to refuel if weather conditions are bad—Pan American, KLM, the Scandinavian Lines, BOAC, etc. Maybe they should all get together and build a hotel or motel worthy of the gleaming beautiful jet age.

Received a message from Gary Cooper and wife Becky that he is now feeling fine after his Boston surgery and is back home in Bel Air, recuperating. Gary is having script trouble with "View From the Fortieth Floor" . . . "We are up to revision 31," is his report.

Sheilah must have become confused in changing British currency to American. In a recent column she said a London newspaper was paying the estate of Errol Flynn $2,500 a word for rights to his biography. It should have been $2.50.

And Tony Perkins arranged for a private screening of his "psycho" film for Alfred Hitchcock, for himself, his mother, his lawyer, and me. I had goose pimples for an hour after the movie was over. It's that exciting.

Joan Crawford back in town after selling her Hollywood home to Donald O'Connor. Everything went, except her silver, china, a few good paintings and antiques. It took Joan 31 years to get the house the way she wanted it, and she had exactly one week to get out and turn the place over to the O'Connors. Joan will now keep a permanent apartment in Hollywood, but continue to make New York her headquarters.

I wonder if Joan Fontaine will reconcile again with Collier Young. She left him, about a year ago, flew to Europe to see a well-known writer—but found he had fallen in love with someone else. Joan came back to Collier and he was delighted to resume where she'd gone away.

Marlon Brando's one-time fiancée, Josanne Mariani, revealed to a London newspaper, Marlon's favorite game. He had a book labelled "Nudes" on a table. His men guests never failed to open it—but, no nudes, just an electric shock. What a strangely childish man this is!

Poor Howard Keel—he was so glad to get back to England where he had his first chance on the stage in "Oklahoma!" But oh how they slaughtered his latest movie, "The Big Fisherman!"

Unsmiling at Wedding

Simple Truth Is—the Queen Is Tired

(Margaret Smith has been covering the British Royal Family for almost 20 years and is the author of several books about the Royal Family.)

By MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI)—There's nothing wrong with Queen Elizabeth that a holiday or a few quiet weekends in the country won't cure.

That's the answer to the question whispered around Westminster Abbey during Princess Margaret's wedding: "What's wrong with the Queen?"

As abbey guests plainly saw, and millions more could see on television, it was an unsmiling Queen who watched her sister marry.

Some said she scowled. Others said she looked down.

Apart from the fact that as the sister of the bride and head of the Church of England it would be strange, still had she seemed gay, the simple truth is the Queen was tired.

If it has taken the Queen, who turned 34 last month, some time to recover fully from the birth of Prince Andrew in February. Then she had a touch of the grippe.

The Queen is not a robust woman at any time. She was still weak from her confinement when she had the shock of the sudden death of her "Aunt Edwina"—Countess Mountbatten.

And on top of all this she had to organize Margaret's wedding.

Any idea that the Queen in such a case just sits back and lets others do all the work and worrying is wrong. She decides and approves and checks everything of importance. All the little details that in other families are divided between the bride and groom's parents are hers for final decision.

Even the menu for the wedding breakfast needed the Queen's sanction.

Now the Queen has opened the busiest royal social season with her first big garden party, for the Commonwealth prime ministers gathered for their conference in London.

During the last few weeks she has had a wide variety of appointments which had to be sandwiched between wedding planning. Her calendar for the weeks ahead is heavy because some engagements had to be put off during her pregnancy and then because of Margaret's engagement and marriage.

Next month she'll have the traditional trooping of the color ceremony, Ascot week, which entails a great deal of entertaining, and an impressive ceremony in St. George's Chapel at Windsor Castle. For this elaborate ceremonial the Queen must walk in procession wearing a rich and extremely heavy velvet cloak and hat over a white satin court gown, followed by all the men to whom the highest order of chivalry in Britain has been awarded.

So right now, whenever she can, the Queen is grabbing restful weekends at Windsor Castle. On medical advice she has not yet resumed her early morning horse rides in the Great Park at Windsor, a pastime she dearly loves.

Family matters also occupy the Queen. She is in the process of deciding which school the 11-year-old Prince of Wales is to attend when he finishes his stay at Cheam School this summer. It might be Eton or any one of a dozen other schools, with the final selection probably due to be a school in more isolated surroundings than Eton.

Princess Anne also is getting old enough—she'll be 10 on Aug. 15—to go to school soon. Until now she has been tutored at Buckingham Palace.

Then, preparations must be made for the Queen's state visit to Ghana in the fall, with an itinerary to be drawn up and confirmed. This means conferences with her ministers.

All reports confirm that the Queen is in good health and spirits. But it has been a hectic year for her and a tiring one.

Cost Tremendous IF People Forced

Cost of supervising a pro-gram of obliging residents to look after boulevards would be "tremendous," Parks Ad-ministrator W. H. Warren told tenders for cutting the greens city parks committee yester-day in an inconclusive discus-sion.

"What would happen if an idea what it would cost, there was no boulevard tax, anyway."

but we passed a bylaw to force people in cut and water the boulevards, and if they didn't, the city would do it and charge them for it," asked Ald. M. H. Mooney.

"It would take a terrific amount of supervision," Mr. Warren said.

A Saanich councillor last night served notice that he wants the municipality's electors to vote on the location of a proposed million-dollar civic centre and recreation area.

Coun. Leslie Passmore told reporters following a council meeting that a 33-acre site already approved by Reeve George Chatterton and other councillors is too far south, too valuable, too expensive and too large.

He said he believed that new civic buildings should be erected on the present municipal hall site at Royal Oak after expropriating enough additional land to provide not more than 3½ acres.

The approved site on Douglas adjacent to Swan Lake, is not suitable for a municipality whose growth pattern is in a northerly direction, he contended, and too valuable for commercial development to be taken off the tax rolls for a municipal project.

He said that in spite of the fact that the municipality has concluded negotiations for key portions of the Douglas Street site, he will ask council to submit the question of location to the ratepayers.

He gave council formal notice of motion last night and said he would have put the motion itself if Reeve Chatterton had been present.

Town Rejected Him

Gift of 3,000 Mice Chemist's Revenge

MENDHAM, N.J. (AP) — all the children so they will amount to more than this generation," he said. Since word got out of the mouse giveaway, more than 20 children have come to the doctor's house for them.

Dr. George Mangun, a biochemist who was forced to stop his experiments with white mice because of a zoning restriction, is getting even with the township. He is giving his 3,000 mice to the neighborhood children.

"My revenge for this town is to make biologists out of

"And they usually take enough for their friends," he said. "The doorbell will ring and there are the little kids with the same question—'can I have a mouse?'"

The biochemist, who was experimenting with mice to perfect pain-killing drugs, ended a year-long controversy with the township earlier this month by announcing he would move out of the state. His research lab was located in the basement of a barn near his home.

Apartheid Debate Failure

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said yesterday the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference did as much as he thought it could to change South Africa's racial policies.

He said all representatives made it clear to South Africa's Eric Louw that apartheid was not gaining support in other Commonwealth nations.

He told applauding members of the Commons he held two long talks with Louw at which he described Canadian dislike of racial discrimination. But Louw remained adamant.

King Fisherman

Trout Division Spurts Ahead Over Weekend

Trout division of The Daily Colonist King Fisherman contest took a big spurt ahead over the weekend with 62 trout weighed in, 53 of them caught in Cowichan Lake.

Realization that steelhead may be entered in the trout division this year has created considerable interest and some consternation among freshwater anglers.

Some of the keenest anglers have taken up the challenge and have gone out after a bigger one than the 13.8-pounder jointly landed by Richard Ashmore and Tom Muir on the Cowichan River Tuesday. Charles Hamilton tried hard and over the weekend reeled in a 9.2 and 6.12 from the Cowichan and Frank Hughes went to the San Juan where he landed a 7.5 and 6.2. Both of them are keen members of the Victoria Fish and Game Association and know the right spots to fish.

Several anglers have voiced their objection to the inclusion of steelhead in the King Fisherman contest. We allowed them in this year on an experimental basis because it had been found that with more than 100 weigh-in stations a number of them without expert knowledge on fish identification—steelhead had been weighed in as trout on several occasions.

Several new weigh-in stations have been registered in The King Fisherman contest including Blome's Lakeside Resort at Lake Cowichan; Silver Bridge Inn on the Island Highway at Duncan; Williams' Bicycle Shop, 159 Jubilee, Duncan; La Belle Vista Auto Court, Bowser; Shelter Point Motel, Trailer Park and Campsite, Shelter Point; Driftwood Beach Motel, Campbell River; Fisherman's Lodge Hotel, Oyster River.

Home-Built Plane Flies in 50 Feet

CALGARY (CP)—A Calgary draftsman defied skeptics Saturday with a successful 20-minute flight in his self-built monoplane "West Wind I." The plane's total weight: 525 pounds.

Veteran pilots and technicians at McCall Field were quoted as saying the tiny plane's polyhedral wings would "fall off in mid-air" as soon as it left the ground, but owner and builder Bob Martyn, 43, was full of confidence.

"I know what's inside the aircraft. I made it with the idea of flying it myself, and my life is as precious to me as anyone else's," he said.

The plane left the ground 50 feet after it began its take-off, flew as fast as 100 miles an hour and as high as 900 feet.

Martyn said the basic construction is on the French

Durine Turbulent plan, but he has made changes in everything but the "stressed skin" design.

The plane's engine is air-cooled, and most of the surface is cloth-covered plywood, supported by spruce in the main spars, ribs and fuselage. The West Wind has no brakes, and depends entirely on its tail skid to slow it down. It carries five gallons of gasoline, enough for two hours at cruising speed. Martyn said it cost him $750 to build.

Ottawa Plans New Tax Deal

Car Licences Up 30,000

Almost 400,000 passenger cars — about 30,000 more than in 1959 — had been licensed to be driven on highways of British Columbia by the end of April, 1960, the motor vehicles branch announced yesterday.

For the first time in some years, the department indicated a drop in the number of new registrations: 9,127 this year compared with 9,198 in 1959.

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—The federal government hopes to lay a new dominion-provincial tax-sharing plan before the 1961 session of Parliament, Finance Minister Donald Fleming said yesterday.

He gave no indication of what changes, if any, the government planned in the current agreement which expires March 31, 1962.

Fleming told a joint meeting of the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce and Vancouver Board of Trade that a Dominion-provincial conference would be held July 25-27 in Ottawa to work out a new fiscal agreement.

"It is the wish of the federal government to be in a position to introduce at the 1961 session of parliament whatever legislation may be required to meet the situation," he said.

In a 23-page speech that ranged over a variety of financial matters, Fleming also said the federal government was willing to participate "substantially" in the financing of Columbia River power development with British Columbia.

Forecast a year of "solid expansion and balanced growth" for the Canadian economy.

Called for a continuous public battle against inflation, "a drug on the economic system."

Said Canada was ready to become a full member of a revitalized organization of European economic co-operation to ensure that economic developments in Europe "will contribute to rather than detract from the work of existing international institutions governing trade and payments."

Accused western wheat organizations of "misrepresenting" the government's position in suggesting that protection of Canadian industries such as textiles against Japanese "dumping" threatened this country's wheat market in Japan.

Voiced dislike for the premium on the Canadian dollar.

Canadian producers shipped a record 140,000 tons of peat moss in 1958, compared with 138,000 tons in 1957.

Monoxide-Gassed Boy Dies Inquest Decision Due Today

Result of a Victoria police investigation, to be completed today and presented to Coroner Dr. E. C. Hart, will determine necessity for an inquest into the death Sunday of Gary Millette, 2½, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Millette, 916 Kings Road.

The child died after being overcome by carbon monoxide poisoning in his father's car at Pedder Bay Friday. Rushed by relays of vehicles to St. Joseph's Hospital, he was reported Saturday to be showing some improvement.

The circumstances developed in RCMP territory but, because death occurred in Victoria, Dr. Hart ordered city police to make the investigation on which he will base his decision.

Gary's three-month-old sister Evelyn was taken to hospital later Friday after showing some effects from the incident, but was reported in good condition yesterday.

An uncle of the dead boy, Raymond Connell, also of 916 Kings, said Millette, his wife and two children drove to Pedder Bay in an older model car which he had obtained the day before, but hadn't yet purchased, from Plumley's.

Yesterday police ordered the car impounded.

Besides his parents and sister, Gary is survived by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Charles, Becher Bay, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lacasse, Ottawa.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Sands' funeral home and Friday at 9 a.m. when Father Lewis MacLellan will offer prayers at Our Lady Queen of Peace Church. Burial will be in the Songhees cemetery.

Billets Still Needed

Billets in city homes are still urgently needed for members of visiting high school bands and drill teams, officials of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association said yesterday.

Accommodation is required only for Sunday, and those wishing to help may phone the association office at EV 2-3912 or secretary Mrs. Ethel Bishop at home, EV 3-6109.

Visiting bands and drill teams have volunteered to entertain patients at Veterans' Hospital who would otherwise miss the weekend celebrations entirely.

Ballard Girls' Drill Team from Seattle will give a display on the lawn outside the hospital starting at 3 p.m. Sunday. They will be followed by the Anacortes High School band, and at 7 p.m. the Bellingham High School band and pep club will entertain patients.

New System to Give 15 Minutes Warning

THULE, Greenland (UPI)—Successful tests have been conducted in this remote base on a new early warning system designed to give at least 15 minutes warning of any Soviet ballistic missile attack.

Gigantic detection radars are already beaming an electronic fan over the north polar region, regarded as the most likely route for any missile or air attack.

Air force officials and officers of the Radio Corporation of America, one of the chief builders of this installation on the edge of Greenland's forbidding icecap, said tests so far have given them a "high degree of confidence" the system will be effective.

Arctic 'Fan' Will Tell Of Missiles

The system, which will go into full-scale operation this fall, will be able to detect a missile, determine its probable target, and dispatch the information to U.S. and British defence centres within seconds. The 15-minute advance warning was regarded as a minimum.

As to its accuracy, Brig. Gen. John B. Estick, deputy director of air force communications and electronics, said the system could detect a "small kitchen door over the west coast" if its radar antennae were set up on the east coast. Besides its use as a guardian against enemy attacks, the system will also be valuable in helping to establish space platforms, one of the United States' prime goals in its explorations of outer space.

This $500,000,000 base will be one of three eventually to make up the completed systems. The other installations will be built at Clear, Alaska, 75 miles south of Fairbanks, and at Fylingdales, England, about 200 miles north of London.

The Alaska post, to be in operation by the summer of 1961, will cost $328,000,000. The British installation will cost $115,000,000, with the United States paying about $90,000,000 under the terms of a joint agreement.

Peace Power Review Demanded

VANCOUVER (CP)—The 2,000-member B.C. Chamber of Commerce Monday called for the provincial government's new Energy Board to conduct a review of the proposed Peace River hydro-electric development.

The resolution, passed almost unanimously by 175 delegates attending the annual meeting here, said: "No major power developments should be initiated in the province save after consideration and recommendation by the B.C. Energy Board."

During discussion, Frank Wilson of Chilliwack said applications before the Public Utilities Commission by the Peace River Power Development Co. will be unopposed.

Massacres 'Buried'

SEOUL (AP)—The newspaper Hankook Ilbo said Monday that South Korean army troops massacred 800 villagers in 1951, accusing them of collaborating with the Communists.

The newspaper said 400 villagers were slaughtered in Kumsongmyon and another 400 in nearby Yulinmyon in February of that year. The story remained buried because witnesses were afraid to talk while Syngman Rhee was president.

Quoting what it said were witnesses to the massacres, the newspaper reported it obtained the accounts after a similar massacre at another nearby village, Kochang, came to light last week.

The three villages are about 160 miles southeast of Seoul in an area where guerrillas virtually ruled by night in the Korean war.

Hankook Ilbo said witnesses told them the guerrillas obtained food from the villagers at gunpoint. The South Korean army, harassed by the

Mayor to Oppose Secrecy In Council

Short Shrift Given Royal Theatre Plan

Mayor Percy Scurrah's comment yesterday on the offer to sell the city the Royal Theatre for use as a civic auditorium was terse and to the point.

Famous Players of Canada offered to sell the 48-year-old building to the city, Ald. Austin Curtis disclosed last week, and assistant city engineer Roderick Clack said it would cost more than $1,000,000 to duplicate today. Proposed price was not stated.

Just back from a municipal convention in Chicago, Mayor Scurrah gave short shrift to the proposal.

"It would be totally inadequate as an auditorium," he said. "That's my opinion."

Municipal Meeting

Scurrah to Open Tax Share Issue

Mayor Percy Scurrah will "get the ball rolling" at a Vancouver Island municipal meeting in mid-June, he said yesterday, on a suggestion that municipal governments should have a share of income tax.

"As a right, not as a hand-out," he emphasized.

TIME TO TALK

The idea, he said, should be explored at a federal-provincial-municipal conference planned in Ottawa this summer.

Home from an international meeting of mayors in Chicago, Mayor Scurrah said the unanimous opinion of Canadian municipalities was that "there must be some readjustment or reallocation of the tax dollar because of the influx of people into the metropolitan areas."

BIG SHIFT

It was predicted, he said, that in another 15 or 20 years 80 per cent of the population would be living in urban areas.

"The great majority, and an increasing amount, of income tax is coming from urban municipalities, and in view of their need, why should they not be entitled to a definite share of that tax?"

GEORGE AUSTIN

Saanich Gunning For Rats

A rodent control program will be launched in Saanich on June 1.

The program is to be paid for by the municipality and administered by the Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Unit.

Rodent extermination was recommended to the municipality earlier this year after residents complained of rising increased numbers of rats.

Don't Blame Teacher For Grads' Conduct

Teachers can't assume responsibility for the conduct of students after the conclusion of graduation functions.

A letter to this effect is going out again this year from the Greater Victoria school board to the parents of students graduating from senior high schools in the Greater Victoria area.

Average City Taxpayer Paying Less for Schools

The average city taxpayer is paying less for school costs this year than last year, Trustee Richard Reeve of the Greater Victoria school board said last night.

He was commenting on a report that the $20 increase

Seen in Passing

George Austin showing off his green peas. (He is one of the veterans of Saanich council, having been a councillor for 21 years. He and his wife, Lilian, have three children and 12 grandchildren. His hobbies are golf and gardening.) ... Tony Lamprecht pulling Andrew Woodsworth out of the water after a sailboat capsized at Prospect Lake. ... Ruth and Wally Stewart visiting their neighbors. ... Evelyn and Joe Windjack talking about diets. ... Art Cole making a run in his taxi. ... Ted Hill-Tunst complaining about the weather. ... Helen Crago singing western songs while her husband John strummed a guitar.

A step toward committee secrecy taken by city council last week in Mayor Percy Scurrah's absence will run into strong mayoral opposition when and if it comes up again.

"I certainly will be voting against it," the mayor said yesterday. "I sure will!"

THIRD READING

A bylaw which would exclude reporters from committee meetings except by invitation was introduced Thursday by Aldermen Rev. J. L. W. McLean and Hugh Ramsay, and was given third reading. One more reading is needed for final approval.

But:

• It may not properly have got past second reading. Council's procedure bylaw requires a two-thirds majority for passage at second reading, and the vote was 5-3. Aldermen Arthur Dowell, Geoffrey Edgelow and Austin Curtis opposing the bylaw.

City Clerk M. F. Hunter advised council of the requirement, but City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady challenged his advice, contending the requirement did not hold in this particular case. This point still had not been settled yesterday.

• Ald. Elmer McEwen, who opposed the secrecy move in debate but nevertheless voted for it, said yesterday he had voted for it so that it could be discussed. If he had voted against it, it could not have reached the discussion stage.

Although he would not commit himself on his actions at the next meeting, this leaves the possibility that the proposed bylaw will be defeated 5-4 if and when it comes up again.

Fair Opens

100,000 Jaycee Target

Despite wind, threatening rain, chilly weather and several mishaps which marred yesterday's opening of the 14th annual Victoria Industrial and Agricultural Exhibition, Junior Chamber of Commerce officials expressed confidence this year's show will draw more than 100,000 visitors.

Attendance of nearly 3,000 from 2 to 5 p.m. was "relatively poor," but the figures had jumped to more than 12,000 by 9 p.m., according to fair chairman William Hughes.

Trouble started Sunday when just minutes after electricity had been supplied to the midway a dump truck raised its bed and ripped out one of the main wires between a transformer and the Curling Rink, he said. Power was restored at 11:30 p.m.

Yesterday's wind ripped a 120 by 40-foot plastic roof from the cattle tent. The plastic sheet, valued at $365, was hastily replaced by sections of canvas roofing.

Wind also blew down a section of fence, crushing the hood of a car owned by Alex Marshall, a member of the Jaycees.

A steady, cool breeze kept many from braving the thrills of the numerous rides scattered about the midway but crowds thronged past the stalls and displays set up inside the arena and curling rink.

Mayor Percy Scurrah, in an official opening ceremony at 8 p.m. in the arena, said he was extremely proud of the Jaycees who with a meagre beginning of a $5,000 budget and an attendance of about 3,000 have graduated to a budget in excess of $65,000 and hope to draw 100,000.

Crowds started getting the carnival spirit about sundown, said Mr. Hughes. "When these people go home and tell their friends, I feel that the 100,000 attendance goal will be shattered."

Navy Sail-Past 'Cheer Ship' for Governor-General

Governor-General Arrives

Navy Tars Roar 'Hello' to Vanier

By IAN STREET

Governor-General George Vanier stood bareheaded on the exposed bridge of HMCS Fraser for most of the 30-minute fleet review off the Dallas Road waterfront late yesterday while ashore thousands of chilled spectators huddled out of the wind.

A 20-knot wind sweeping down Juan de Fuca Strait blew the governor-general's silver hair as he doffed his hat in acknowledgement of the traditional three cheers given by the ship's company as each of the 14 warships of Pacific Command steamed past.

RAIN SQUALL

A rain squall blew up as the Fraser entered Victoria harbor, but half an hour later at 6 p.m. when the warship entered the calm of the Inner Harbor, the colorful scene was bathed in warm spring sunshine.

A 21-gun royal salute was fired by the 5th Independent Medium Battery, RCA, and a 100-man naval royal guard from Pacific Command was standing stiffly to attention on the Black Ball Ferry dock as the governor-general and Madame Vanier stepped ashore.

SMALL DAIS

They were greeted by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, Premier Bennett, Mayor Percy Scurrah and Admiral Rayner and their wives. Governor-General Vanier stood on a small dais while the band of HMCS Naden played the Queen, then he inspected the guard.

The vice-regal party drove to Government House where they will be guests during their two-night stay here.

It was a quiet welcome from the several hundred spectators who lined the Inner Harbor in late afternoon sunshine. The first booming shot of the 21-gun salute fired from Belleville Street in front of the flag-draped legislative buildings sent a flock of pigeons wheeling into the air.

NEW PAINT

The Fraser, resplendent in a new coat of grey paint, flying the blue, personal flag of the governor-general and the red and gold flag of the naval board at her masthead, was preceded by two small service tugs as she approached the dock.

Earlier, on the Dallas Road waterfront from Ogden Point to beyond Ross Bay cars were parked on both sides of the road. Spectators huddled inside for warmth or in the protection of bushes along the cliff's edge which broke the force of winds gusting up to 30 miles an hour.

SMALL KNOTS

Small knots of spectators standing in the open quickly headed for home as the last warship saluted the Fraser. Overhead roared Neptune bombers of 407 maritime patrol squadron based at Comox RCAF station.

In Vancouver the vice-regal party boarded the Fraser in a rainstorm. The sun broke through the clouds as the ship with three escorting destroyers—Assiniboine, Skeena and St. Laurent—neared Active Pass.

ADMIRER VIEW

En route the governor-general and Mme. Vanier went to the upper deck to admire the view as the warships traversed Active Pass and both were impressed.

"Isn't this exciting," the governor-general said. "I feel like a child enjoying it for the first time."

Mme. Vanier was equally excited. "It's worth being governor-general just to enjoy this trip," she exclaimed.

For Governor-General

Official Welcome Open to Public

The public is invited to attend official welcoming ceremonies for Governor-General George Vanier in front of the legislative buildings this morning.

Spectators are asked to be in their places by 10:15 a.m., a government spokesman said. Arrival of the vice-regal party is timed for 10:30 and both Premier Bennett and the governor-general are scheduled to make brief speeches.

Coronation On Friday

Esquimalt May Queen Sandra Smith will be crowned in ceremonies Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Gorge Park. Coun. E. L. DeCosta, parks committee chairman, announced yesterday.

In the presence of the 1959 queen, Margaret Francis, Queen Sandra will be crowned by Mrs. A. C. Wurtele, wife of the reeve.

Coun. James Bryant will be master of ceremonies in a program which will include performances by school children of the municipality.

More than 2,000 children from local elementary schools will attend the ceremonies which have been combined with the annual IODE Empire and Citizenship Day ceremony.

This will be followed by an official civic welcome for the governor-general at city hall starting at 11 a.m.

Mayor Scurrah will present Governor-General Vanier with an illuminated address of welcome on a special flag-draped platform in front of city hall.

In the afternoon at Government House there will be an investiture. Among those receiving awards will be Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross who will get the Silver Wolf Scouting award. British Empire Medal (civil division) will go to two RCMP officers from the Interior. Const. Alvin Thomas Millhouse and Const. Hugh Dickson Bowyer.

The BEM award for gallantry will also go to Cecil Bingham of Surrey, B.C., and Arthur Ernest Lewis of Dease Lake, B.C.

In the evening the governor-general and Mme. Vanier will be guests of honor at a private dinner party at Government House.

Welcome to Victoria

Warm welcome was given by smiling Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross as Governor-General George Vanier stepped ashore at Inner Harbor. Also on hand to greet vice-regal party were Premier Bennett, Mayor Scurrah, Rear-Admiral Rayner, and their wives. (Colonist photo.)

Again Tomorrow

Rise at 4.40 a.m. To See Satellite

Early risers had a chance to see Russia's latest space vehicle over Victoria this morning, and they'll have another opportunity tomorrow—at 4.40 a.m. PDT.

The giant satellite will be seen tomorrow—weather permitting—for the space of about two minutes as it flashes across the sky, starting low in the southwest and remaining visible until it reaches a point almost overhead.

Officials at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich said it should be seen easily with the naked eye. The satellite was scheduled to put in an appearance today at 4:17 a.m. PDT and remain visible for about a minute as it travelled northwards from a point low in the southeast sky.

Sports Day May 27

Elementary and senior high schools in Greater Victoria will hold their annual interschool sports meets May 27.

Junior high schools will hold their sports meet June 1 at Macdonald Park. Senior high sports will be held at Victoria High School.

Secretary to His Excellency Maj.-Gen. Georges Vanier, Mr. Esmond Butler accompanied the vice-regal party in HMCS Fraser on the trip from Vancouver to Victoria. Shown with Mr.

Butler is his wife, the former Georgina North, cousin of the Earl of Guilford. They were married recently in London.

Thousands Line Shore For Vanier's Arrival

By EILEEN LEAROYD

A flood of sunshine, a naval guard of honor, the RCN band, and provincial dignitaries greeted Mrs. Georges Vanier, wife of the Governor-General of Canada, as with His Excellency, she stepped off destroyer escort HMCS Fraser onto Vancouver Island yesterday evening.

Canada's first lady, striking in a grey ensemble was closely followed by her lady-in-waiting, Mrs. Louis Berger of Quebec City.

ARISTOCRATIC

Mrs. Vanier, mother of four sons (one of them a Trappist monk) and a daughter, is an aristocratic-looking woman. Known as an adept hostess, she was Canada's official hostess in Paris in the post-war years in France when her husband served as Canadian ambassador.

On the wharf, the Vaniers had first been welcomed by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor Frank M. Ross and Mrs. Ross, Premier and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mayor and Mrs. P. B. Scurrah, Admiral and Mrs. H. S. Rayner.

WHITE HATS

Mrs. Ross, just returned from England where she and His Honor attended Princess Lady-in-waiting to Mrs. Vanier, Mrs. Louis Berger.

Margaret's wedding, was lovely in a coat of black corded silk over a black and white silk dress. Her hat was softly petalled in white organza. She wore pearls and a diamond brooch.

Mrs. Bennett also chose black and white as her color scheme. Over her suit she wore a grey fur cape, and white cloche hat. Mrs. Scurrah chose a floral silk in turquoise, fur jacket and white flowered hat. Mrs. Rayner wore a frock of delphinium blue, floral hat and fur stole.

Mrs. Vanier wore a coat of grey tweed with dark grey collar over a lighter suit. Her smart "fedora" in felt made a pretty contrast with her silver hair. Mrs. Berger was in dark blue tweed with matching pillbox hat, topped by a light blue coat.

THIRD LADY

The third lady was Mrs. Butler.

Mrs. Butler is the English wife of Canadian Esmond Butler, formerly assistant press secretary to Queen Elizabeth, now secretary to the Governor-General.

Tall, slim and charming, Mrs. Butler chose a tweed suit in green and brown with a lime green coat. Her hat was a mixture of closely woven feathers and darker green velvet.

Mrs. Butler, who was in Victoria on the royal tour last year, warmly greeted many people he remembered.

'Outfits' Out—In Cruise Wear

Each year to many a woman the choice of an attractive travel wardrobe is almost as important as planning the itinerary for the European vacation. The too-small wardrobe can prove embarrassing, the too-large wardrobe a carrying chore, and the wardrobe made up of "outfits"—you know, the little morning dress in cotton knit, the taffeta ensemble for cocktails, and the gown for evening—a thorough impossibility. All have built-in restrictions rather than versatility.

The art, of course, is to get the perfect balance of comfort and chic along with the flair for repetition without monotony. Difficult? Not necessarily, if you plan the bulk of your wardrobe around clothes that are simple, basic, and can do double or even triple duty. In this way, you avoid the rigidity imposed by the "two-dresses-for-day, two-dresses-for-evening system." Rather, you will have four or more costumes that can be interchanged at almost any time.

A cruise hostess says that the uncluttered linen sheath and full-skirted city cotton that goes bare-shouldered at night and sweated by day are both tops on the versatile list. Another favorite is the jacketed dress of navy silk that becomes an afternoon or theatre suit after an uncovered day at the museum. The popular shirt-dress, fortunately, comes in many materials, prints and varieties of design. Therefore, if you exercise selectivity, you can even make this most casual of dresses do double duty—particularly if it's a flowered silk or an acetate that almost washes itself.

Take only two skirts, three shirts, and a few pretty sweaters for walks or picnics.

What's Cooking!

By LOUISE MOORE

The hard-headed business man who paid millions for the secret of freezing with heat certainly got his money back for frozen foods, especially ice cream, are among our most popular foods.

You find a slice of it on the morning cereal with or without strawberries; whipped into jello for a scrumptious pie or pudding; as a topping for fruit crisps and cobbles and other baked desserts; with ginger bread; baked in a hot oven as baked Alaska; sandwiched with cake and topped with sauce—even find it floating in a tall glass of chocolate malted and other hot weather ice cold beverages.

You can make your own ice cream but why bother when it is so easy to get from your corner drug store or grocer and it is so economical to buy. But if you must make your own well and good and here is just the recipe to try.

HOME MADE ICE CREAM

Heat 1½ cups light cream in top of double boiler until scalding hot but do not boil. Stir in ½ cup white sugar and stir until dissolved. Add one to two tsp. salt.

Lightly beat 4 egg yolks and slowly stir in about ½ cup of the scalded cream and stir and cook over hot water until custard is smooth and thick as corn syrup. Stir constantly. Cool.

Add 2 tbsp. vanilla. Beat with rotary beater for a moment. Beat 2 cups whipping cream until it holds its shape, then fold into the custard mixture.

Pour into two freezing trays. Set control at coldest point and freeze until firm about 3 hours. Makes 1 quart.

FANCY FIXINGS

To serve with vanilla ice cream—Canned crushed pineapple with chopped mint; toasted shredded coconut; hot maple syrup and pecans; a little hot black coffee on each serving; heated marmalade; crumbled macaroons; warmed pitted Bing cherries in brandy; peanut butter thinned with orange juice; fruit, berries or mixed fruit; on brownies with chocolate sauce.

To serve with chocolate ice cream—Toasted shredded coconut; crushed peanut brittle; fudge or marshmallow sauce; toasted shredded nuts; on sponge cake with honey and salted nuts; on brownies with chocolate sauce; rolled in tinted coconut.

Has poor health made you uninsurable?

It can come to many people—a serious health problem before they own enough life insurance to meet their family's minimum requirements. If this has happened to you or if your application for insurance has been declined on a medical basis recently, we suggest you check with the Man from Manufacturers.

He represents a company that practices the maxim that life insurance should be available to as wide a group of people as possible. Manufacturers Life in fact was the first company in Canada to offer life insurance to men and women with diabetes. Many people with coronary artery disease have qualified for Manufacturers Life policies over the past 5 years. Our experience with both these impairments has enabled us to revise rates downward.

Whatever your physical condition you can be sure of careful and individual consideration of your application at the Manufacturers Life.

MANUFACTURERS LIFE

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I think it's time somebody said something about the wife of the married student. There seems to be quite an epidemic of married men going to college these days while the wife works to pay the bills.

I'm not saying this shouldn't be done, but I'd like to pass on a little first-hand advice to the girls. I was married right out of high school to a boy who was ambitious and very bright. He had a partial scholarship, but for eight years I worked at an eight-hour job and did the housework, cooking, washing and ironing besides. I kept telling myself the future would be worth all the hard work and doing without.

Well, today he's a professional man, but I don't seem to fit into his life anymore. He uses big words that I don't even understand. He goes places without me because I don't mix well with his egg-head friends. I'm sure people feel he married out of his intellectual class and feel sorry for him.

Had to Move Over

Dear Ann: Aren't the early arrivals at a wedding entitled to the choice seat? Recently we went to a wedding and got seats on the centre aisle.

Every time a couple was ushered to our row my husband motioned for me to scoot over. One couple just stood there until we moved down. We ended up at the very end of the row which made me mad.

There's another wedding coming up and I'd like to know what's proper. If you say we should move down, and surrender our choice seats to the late-comers, I'm going to start arriving late instead of early.

Dear Akron: The early arrivals are entitled to the choice seats. Tell your husband it's not impolite for people who have snagged the aisle seats to hang on to them. If late-comers motion for you to move down, simply stand there as if your feet were embedded in cement and signify with a gesture for them to move on down.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Annual reports were presented by Mrs. E. T. Cantell, chairman, dietetics and public relations committee; Mrs. G. Soutar, chairman, purchasing committee; Mrs. Ida M. Royle, chairman rooms rental committee; Mrs. D. C. Todd, chairman maintenance committee.

During the year 27 new residents were admitted to the home, and the maintenance committee report showed that 25 rooms and the main halls of the building had been redecorated. Financial statement showed that the sum of $1,750.99 had been received in donations, part of which had been used for major repairs to two pianos and providing TV sets for the lounge rooms and staff quarters.

Evader Fined $200

Previously convicted of the same offence, a Victoria man yesterday was fined $200 for failing to file an income tax return.

Robert A. Simpson, 344 Niagara, pleaded guilty to a charge laid under a section of the Income Tax Act, which sets a minimum fine of $200, for failing to comply with a demand for a return.

It was a morning in which cases from each Greater Victoria municipality were brought before Magistrate William Ostler.

Esquimalt was first, with Edward G. Loney, 474 Gault, fined $250 when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. His car was involved in a crash Saturday night on Esquimalt Road.

In the same court, Victorians
Barry Keele and James Russell
Schultz pleaded guilty to two joint charges of uttering forged cheques, one at the Halfway House and the other at the Tudor House, both
May 11.

Both cheques were for $50, for which they received cash.

The two have already pleaded guilty to similar charges in other local courts, and have been sentenced for the same offence at Duncan.

Both were remanded to Wednesday for sentence.

In Oak Bay court, Brian Watson, 22, of 421 Durban, was sentenced to six months definite and four indefinite at the young offenders' unit of Oakalla on each of two charges of breaking and entering.

One offence occurred in January, 1959, at the Lewis Low Cost Grocery, 2897 Foul Bay; the other last week at the Victoria Golf Club pro shop.

Sentences were made concurrent.

In Saanich court, Frank R.
Finley, 3022 Millgrove, was fined $250 for impaired driving, after his car overturned on Glanford Avenue. He was remanded to May 24 for a probation report on his driver's licence.

Thief's Haul Mostly Jewelry

A number of small items, mostly jewelry, were stolen
Sunday by a thief who raided an apartment at 608 Superior some time between 4 and 11 p.m., city police were informed.

A jewel case containing two necklaces, three pendants, a bracelet and earring set, wallet and papers were stolen from Katherine Day, and a bank book, fraternity pin, pen and other items were lost by Margaret McLellan, both of Apartment 6.

Police said entry was gained through an unlocked bedroom window.

More and more people are choosing ZEE Toilet Tissue, saying so many good things about it. That it's a much nicer tissue (because it's baby-skin soft), that it's a prettier tissue (comes in pleasant colours as well as white), that it tears neatly, evenly. Resisting all impulse to shout these praises, we simply suggest that you try ZEE. You'll like it, we're sure. Because there isn't any tissue nicer than ZEE.

Purpose: Dispose Of Devils

PARIS (AP) — Premier Khrushchev turned to President de Gaulle during yesterday's summit session, and a spokesman reported, and said:

"I wonder what devil pushed the United States into this (spy flight)."

Snapped de Gaulle: "There are many devils in the world, and we have come here precisely to exorcise them."

Handshakes Goodbyes Left Out

PARIS (UPI) — Atmosphere at the summit meeting was "cold and businesslike," according to former United States ambassador to Moscow Charles Bohlen, who attended as secretary for the U.S. delegation.

Eisenhower and Khrushchev did not shake hands. Khrushchev was in place at the table when Eisenhower arrived. When the meeting ended, there were no goodbyes between them.

TORONTO — John Bassett, chairman of the newly licensed second TV station in Toronto, said that his station is not at all interested in affiliation with the CBC network.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER

John D. Repeats Open Skies Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker yesterday restated Canada's open skies offer to Russia to prove American U-2 spy planes are not using Canadian bases. However, he said inspection must be reciprocal.

"If Mr. Khrushchev says our bases have been or are being used, then I invite him to say which and where, and then to have his people come in and see for themselves, providing, of course, he gives us the same right of inspection."

Mr. Diefenbaker said U-2 aircraft have not used Canadian bases for weather research "or any other purpose."

Another Stern Note

Condemn Flights, U.S. Told

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union Monday formally and strongly called on the United States in a note to condemn its "provocative" spy flights over Russia.

The note, handed over here, paralleled the demands made on President Eisenhower by Premier Khrushchev at the opening summit session in Paris Monday morning.

It was the second Soviet note protesting the downed American spy flight over Russia May 1 and called on the U.S. to "condemn the provocative activities of its aviation in relation to the Soviet Union."

Monday's note demanded that the U.S. government "reject its announced policy, most dangerous to the cause of peace, of aggressive intrusion into the air space of other states."

The note charged that State Secretary Christian Herter's week-old statement on the spy plane and other public statements in the U.S. sought to justify hostile activities which are permissible only in relations between states which are in a state of war with each other."

Russia Steps Up 'Voice' Jamming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians have stepped up their jamming of U.S. Voice of America short-wave broadcasts, a Voice spokesman reported Monday.

Moscow all but abandoned its jamming of the Voice's Russian language broadcasts after Premier Khrushchev arrived for his U.S. visit last Sept. 15.

But, the spokesman said, since May 5, the day Khrushchev announced Russia had downed an American spy plane, the Soviet jammers have been aiming their radio interference selectively at the Voice's Russian-language programs dealing with the plane incident.

Monday, he said, the Red jammers opened up on a 9 a.m. MDT Russian language newscast, and when the newscast was repeated at 10 they blasted away during the first nine minutes of the 15-minute program.

There was also heavy jamming against the Russian language program last Saturday, plus some increase in the jamming against Ukrainian broadcasts.

Monitoring reports tell of complete jamming against the Lithuanian broadcast of last Friday.

Condemn Flights, U.S. Told

Monday's Soviet note replied to an American note of last Thursday in which Washington said its policy of collecting intelligence about Russia with American planes was "for purely defensive purposes."

The U.S. note also denied Moscow's charge that the May Day spy plane flight was an aggressive move or was aimed at prejudicing the summit talks.

The U.S. Embassy here immediately transmitted the text of Monday's note to Eisenhower in Paris.

In Bonn, it was disclosed that Russia sternly protested Sunday against the violation of Communist East German air space May 5 by an unmarked plane from West Germany.

The West said the incident already had been explained to the Russians.

In London, Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan said Russian planes have been flying over his country "for some time." He added he had no knowledge of the American spy flights from Pakistan as charged by Russia and denied his government was involved in the U-2 incident.

Ike Was Right

Changeable Nikita Was Genial Once

By JACK V. FOX

NEW YORK (UPI) — The last look the U.S. got of Nikita Khrushchev was on a balmy evening last Sept. 27. He glanced up into the television cameras and said:

"Goodbye. Good luck, Friends."

The Soviet premier was genial, almost bubbling. His 13-day visit had wound up on a high note after a cool beginning.

But he became absolutely chummy that last night as he explained why President Eisenhower's scheduled Soviet visit had been postponed.

"In my opinion the summer of spring would be the best time for the president and especially for his grandchildren — when everything is in bloom, when the air is pervaded with sweet scents, when there are no cold autumn or winter winds blowing."

Monday in Paris Khrushchev abruptly withdrew that invitation.

The day after Khrushchev went home, Eisenhower termed him a "dynamic and arresting personality" who is "capable of changing from an almost negative, difficult attitude to the most easy, genial, affable type of discussion."

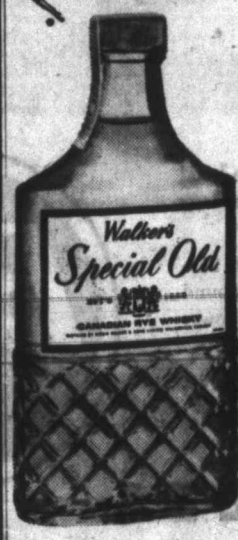

UN Ready To Speed Open Skies

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Diplomats said yesterday the United Nations has legal mechanism for putting President Eisenhower's aerial surveillance plan into operation on short notice.

They agreed that the latest East-West cold war crisis would be put before the Security Council soon.

NEWSPAPERS HAVE GUARANTEED READERSHIP

Mysterious Test Has U.S. Jittery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Global military commands of the U.S. conducted a mysterious pre-dawn combat readiness test Monday on orders sent from Paris by Defence Secretary Thomas Gates.

A defence department spokesman said Gates wanted to test high-speed military communications from overseas as well as the alert status of the military forces.

WORD SPED

Although Gates tried not to attract public attention, word of the test sped across the U.S. soon after midnight as some pilots were reported "scrambling" for their intercept planes.

Some cases of jitters were reported among the civilian population as the then-unexplained exercise got underway.

ONLY IKE

The circumstances suggested the test was designed to check President Eisenhower's ability to keep in instantaneous touch with the Strategic Air Command and other nuclear striking forces when he is out of the country. No one but the president can order these forces into action.

Informed sources said Eisenhower obviously had advance knowledge of the action taken by Gates, who is in Paris as an adviser during summit talks. Gates called off the test after about seven hours.

Defence Department spokesmen had not been forewarned and were unable to deal at first with inquiries pouring in from across the country.

The spokesman said that, in addition to checking communications, both the Continental Air Defence Command and Strategic Air Command "conducted limited routine alert activities." But no fighter planes or bombers took off.

Addicts Get Break

OTTAWA (UPI)—Justice Minister Fulton yesterday announced federal approval of a new approach towards handling drug addicts inside and outside prison.

Mr. Fulton said there would also be increased penalties for convicted drug traffickers, but he did not go into detail.

The plan provides for "custody for treatment" of convicted addicts and their long-term supervision after release. There would also be a program for addicts who have not broken any federal laws but need treatment as a preventive measure.

Fulton said provincial as well as federal laws would have to be enacted to put the plan into effect.

"Meetings will be held in the immediate future between officials of the federal and provincial governments to study the plan and to work out methods of achieving the objects it has been designed to achieve," he said.

He hoped the necessary legislation would be presented without undue delay.

Mr. Fulton emphasized the legislation would not affect addicts already imprisoned or those under sentence when it comes into force.

The period of supervision imposed might last for many years. But, he said, this type of treatment was less expensive than imprisonment.

Bonner's Reaction:

Dope-Fighting Proposal 'Novel Idea'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Bonner reserved judgment Monday on a main feature of a federal proposal to the provinces to combat drug addiction. (See opposite page.)

The proposal was that the province pass a law making drug addiction an offence.

"It is a novel suggestion which I think has not been examined in this country, certainly not in this province," he said.

"On the face of it, it appears to create a new offence, and if so it would more properly belong in the Criminal Code rather than a provincial statute.

"This involves depriving a person of his liberty and I think that is a step that should be taken by the national government only after it has been examined by the public and after the fullest debate.

MANY FORMS

"I reserve any final expression of opinion on that issue... there are many forms of addiction. Some people are addicted to barbiturates and sleeping pills."

Mr. Bonner said a national plan was long overdue and "when the proper national approach is made, I'm quite certain the provincial government will be most anxious to co-operate."

He said he had not received the proposals Justice Minister Fulton described to the press and had no discussion or communication with him on the subject of drugs for a long time.

Fulton's plan, said Bonner, amounted to federal recognition of a national responsibility and meant the B.C. government's campaign of the last eight years had succeeded.

B.C.'s Narcotics Addiction Foundation showed the way in treatment of voluntary patients, he added.

Espionage 'Rather Dirty Business'

Russians Above Pakistan —But Protests 'No Use'

ALFRED, N.Y. (UPI) — A Russian official told Alfred University students Monday that "spying is inconsistent with the Soviet system."

Vladimir Trifonov, an attaché at the Russian embassy in Washington, addressed 200 students on "basic principles of Soviet foreign policies."

When one student asked if Russia expected the U.S. not to counter an international espionage system, he replied: "We don't know about espionage and we don't try to contend that it is natural."

Another cited Col. Rudolf Abel, whose 1957 conviction as a Soviet spy was upheld by the supreme court, and Trifonov said "I know only from the Western press about Abel. I wasn't here at the time."

"From the first grade on the Soviet people are taught it is rather dirty business to poke their noses into another people's affairs."

In Berlin, the Soviet military commander for East Germany complained to the Western Allies that an unmarked aircraft had flown over the Soviet zone May 5 in a "gross violation" of East German territory.

Col. Gen. I. I. Jakubowski said that in future the Soviets would take "most decisive measures to stop such violations."

A French embassy spokesman identified the aircraft as a single-seater private sports plane that had wandered off course.

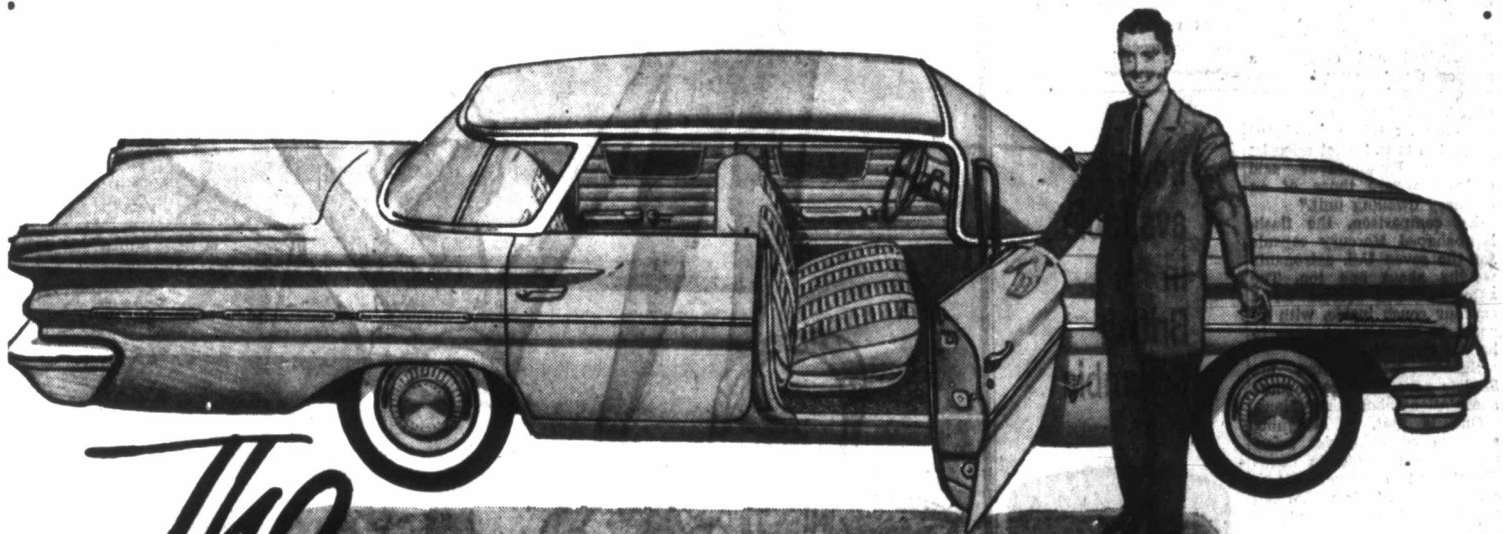

In Washington, an American official said that U.S. spy plane pilot Francis G. Powers was under orders to admit his espionage mission if captured by the Russians.

George V. Allen, director of the U.S. Information Agency said Sunday the pistol and hypodermic needle carried by Powers were for use in taking his life only if he were in danger of being tortured.

The president denied that his government was involved in the American spy-plane incident.

"We have no bases," he said. "We have our own bases and that is all."

He was replying to questions by reporters about Soviet use."

Red Spaceman

'Cosmonaut' Will Live In Luxury

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—The standard of in-space living conditions for the first Russian astronaut will border on the luxurious, compared to his U.S. counterpart.

The Project Mercury capsule expected to carry the first U.S. space traveller into an orbit around earth some time next year will leave him just enough room to blink his eyes and move his hands.

Russia, on the other hand, seems bent on providing her fledgling spacemen "Cosmonauts" with a small efficiency apartment.

A prototype of the first Soviet "space cabin," fully pressurized and carrying a supposedly "dummy" spaceman, went into orbit Saturday. The cabin of the almost five-ton satellite weighed about 2½ tons. Soviet scientist Vladimir Dubrovnikov said conditions "are those of an ordinary dwelling unit."

By comparison, the flash-light-shaped Mercury capsule for the seven U.S. astronauts weighs about one ton. The astronaut will recline on a contour couch inside, with no room to move about, save to handle controls.

Scanty details from the Soviets gave credence to some speculations about their plans. One is that, in designing a space cabin, Soviet scientists were thinking in terms of putting two cosmonauts into orbit at once. This would put them several years beyond U.S. plans.

The U.S. program is definite—and considerably more limited. Twenty Mercury capsules have been ordered, each 9½ feet long, six feet across the base and tapering to 20 inches at the top.

U.S. scientists are confined in the size of their capsule by the rocket power available. The capsule will ride atop an Atlas, the mightiest U.S. ICBM. But Atlas can orbit little more than the capsule weight without more stages.

Until more powerful boosters come along, the U.S. apparently will have to get along the best it can with the comparatively tiny Mercury capsules, regardless of what Russia does.

throw off U.S. scientists while testing to see whether safe recovery could be achieved. They say they don't expect it.

U.S. Closer To Man In Space?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nature of the experiment described in Russia's spaceflight announcement may mean the Russians are not as far along as the U.S. toward achieving manned space flights, says a prominent government space scientist.

Canadian-born Dr. John Hagen of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and one-time director of the Vanguard program, said:

"If you can believe their announcement, they have not faced up to the most serious problem—how to solve the re-entry problem and recover a man safely from orbit."

"We think that we understand how to do this and to do it well. It's not clear that the Russians do."

There was speculation elsewhere that the Russians may have a living man aboard the vehicle, and are using the "dummy spaceman" twist to

Gloom Grips World as Leaders Square Off

LONDON (Reuters) — The world waited anxiously Monday night as the Paris summit talks threatened to explode into failure over the Soviet-American quarrel about spy flights over Russia. Officials and others here and in capitals throughout the world expressed their regrets at the clash—and their hopes that the long-awaited talks would continue despite it. A wave of gloom gripped Paris as crowds of citizens going home from work Monday night gathered outside newspaper stands reading headlines. Their faces were anxious. Similar scenes had not been seen since the Korean War began. The official mood was sombre in Bonn in view of the dangers over Berlin if the conference failed.

A commentator in Communist East Berlin said Russia had made no threat or ultimatum but merely a "justified demand." "Either there will be honorable negotiations or none at all," he added.

Even before the blowup, pessimism about the East-West conference had been expressed widely in the wake of reports on the "tough" line Soviet Premier Khrushchev took Sunday during the preliminary talks in the French capital.

British newspapers were plunged into gloom in Tuesday morning editions. (See picture below.) The right-wing London Daily Mail says if the conference fails "it will be because Mr. Khrushchev wants it to." The Conservative London

Daily Telegraph says "The ugly possibility must now be faced: That those Western leaders who argued for a change of Western attitudes to the Soviet Union, and a jettisoning of the Dulles policy of toughness, may have badly miscalculated."

MACMILLAN TRIES FRANTICALLY TO PATCH UP CRUMBLING SUMMIT

This morning's front pages in London

Resist, Canada Urges

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canadian leaders yesterday urged the Western big three to resist Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's "bellicose" attempt to break up the Paris summit meeting at its outset. Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, backed by opposition spokesmen, took sharp exception to Khrushchev's threat to quit the Paris meeting unless President Eisenhower apologized for the U-2 spy plane incident. Diefenbaker called the Soviet premier's action "intimidation." Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson termed it "an apparently brutal ultimatum." Both Diefenbaker and Pearson said world hopes demanded that the meeting not break down. Socialist House Leader Hazen Argue called for an end to "spying, threatening and stalling."

Five-Ton Satellite Dead On

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russian scientists said their space ship satellite was dead on course Monday night, a glowing beacon in night skies as it encompassed the globe every 91 minutes. The equipment-jammed control cabin with its dummy pilot was flashing back information and paving the way for the first manned space flights, they said. The nearly five tons of satellite ranged between 194 and 230 miles above the earth's surface, whirling over major cities of the west with clockwork regularity. Still unanswered, however, was when the Soviet scientists will release the pressurized cabin for its flaming re-entry into the earth's heavy atmosphere. A Russian scientist visiting England said Monday the release could be expected within days. The satellite, launched Sunday on the eve of the Paris summit talks, dominated the news in Monday's edition of the Communist newspaper Pravda. It contrasted the peaceful aims of the Soviet space experiment with the "aggressive" nature of the American espionage flight over the Soviet Union May 1.

Water Flown To Flood Area

POLEYET, Ont. (UPI)—Health officials yesterday ordered residents of this flood-stricken town not to drink the community's water supply and fresh water was flown in from Timmins, Ont., by over-shooting planes. (See other flood stories on Page 3.)

ADLAI STEVENSON

Spy 'Fiasco' Gets Blame

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai Stevenson Monday blamed the collapse of the summit meeting in Paris on American mishandling of the spy plane incident. Stevenson said "this whole fiasco, discloses the painfully precarious state of our relations, the uneasiness in the world—the rapidity with which the situation can deteriorate with frightening implications."

"We have blundered and in effect admitted it."

Stevenson said for the United States first to deny and then admit the U-2 spy flight over Russian territory, and to suggest such flights would continue, left Khrushchev no choice but to protest.

Other U.S. comment: Sen. John F. Kennedy: "We can hope that the voices of moderation and mutual self-interest in preserving world peace can prevail... (but) Mr. Khrushchev... cannot divide America on partisan lines in matters affecting security."

Sen. Stuart Symington: "The news is most distressing."

Senate majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson: "Khrushchev's price is obviously unacceptable to the United States."

Khrushchev Plane All Set to Leave

PARIS (UPI)—Great Britain undertook the desperate role of peacemaker last night to save the summit conference, threatened with collapse in its opening hours by Premier Nikita Khrushchev's "insulting" attack on President Eisenhower and the United States.

After hearing Khrushchev cancel his invitation to Eisenhower to visit Russia because of the U-2 spy plane incident and threaten to stage a walk-out, Eisenhower accused the Soviet premier of coming all the way to Paris just to sabotage the conference.

There were unofficial reports that ever since its arrival Saturday, Khrushchev's plane had been ordered refueled and ready for return to Moscow tomorrow.

FRANTIC EFFORT
Prime Minister Harold Macmillan undertook a frantic round-robin series of meetings with all of the other Big Four leaders in the attempt to save the conference and it was reported that Khrushchev after a 1½-hour private conference had given him a statement to be delivered to Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle in the morning.

Eisenhower was openly angry over Khrushchev's outburst over the U-2 spy incident. At one point he appeared disgusted when the Soviet premier, an Atheist, exclaimed, "As God is my witness, my hands are clean and my soul is pure" when it came to espionage activities.

FRIENDLY TALKS
Macmillan conferred for more than 1½ hours with Khrushchev in the Soviet embassy last night. A British spokesman said they would meet again today after the Big Three western leaders' get-together at 2 a.m. (PDT).

The official Soviet news agency Tass report on the Macmillan-Khrushchev talks described them as a "friendly conversation."

HANDSHAKE
When he left, he was escorted to the door by Khrushchev, Soviet defence minister Rodion Y. Malinovsky, and ambassador Sergei Vinogradov. Khrushchev shook hands with Macmillan on the doorstep.

Their handshake was a striking contrast to the coolness Eisenhower and Khrushchev displayed toward each other. They did not shake hands either at the beginning or the end of the Big Four meeting this morning.

ILL-AT-EASE
A member of the U.S. delegation said Khrushchev, seated at Eisenhower's right, seemed ill at ease and tense as he delivered his 40-minute tirade. Eisenhower sat poker-faced throughout.

Eisenhower left his plans in abeyance and had not yet decided whether to try to continue the conference or go home, although he said he preferred to remain in Paris.

The Western Big Three scheduled a meeting this morning but a planned lunch including Khrushchev as a guest was cancelled.

Cigaret Addict's Diary Now We Try Suppression

Colonial reporter Terry Hammond, along with scores of other Victorians, is trying to kick the cigarette habit with the help of the Colonist's recent series of articles by author King Hammond, a three-part-a-day "Addict" describes another step in his withdrawal.

By TERRY HAMMOND
Q-Day minus four.

During the four days which remain before you free yourself of the beastly old cigarette habit you may find yourself increasingly preoccupied with the ordeal ahead.

If this is the case you must practice thought suppression. But before you do, I must point out that thought suppression comes in about a dozen different sizes (Junior Miss to Senior Men's Broad Jump).

If you go all the way with thought suppression you will simply become a babbling idiot and we won't let you play any more.

EASY THOUGHTS
And if you don't go far enough you will only be able to suppress the really easy thoughts like income tax, mother-in-law, garden spading, haircuts, helping-with-the-dishes, etc., and not the harder ones like smoking or girls.

Naturally, if you are going to try to suppress an uppermost thought like smoking you are going to have to have an uppermost thought to take its place. You can't simply stop thinking about smoking one second and start thinking the next second about how there seem to be more yellow-billed, bandy-legged, Arctic puffins than usual this year.

You have to find a substitute thought which you can rilly get your teeth into. If you've ever tried getting your teeth into a yellow-billed, bandy-legged Arctic puffin you will know what I mean, and this year's crop is the worst yet.

LOOK AT WATCH
With this year's puffins you couldn't suppress a sudden inclination to look at your watch.

What you have to do is conjure up something which is just as important to you as smoking, but which is not smoking.

Probably you can think of a dozen things. I certainly hope you do. Personally I have racked my brains and I am unable to come up with a single one.

But I haven't given up... all the time I am racking my brains I am not really thinking about smoking. I am just proving to myself how nothing seems to compare with it in importance.

Our Taxes Cut to $1 Sacred Tells Prairies

NEUDORF, Sask. (CP)—Herb Bruch, Social Credit member of the British Columbia legislature for Esquimalt, says most home-owners in British Columbia pay only $1 in municipal tax.

Mr. Bruch told a public meeting here Friday night that this low tax is made possible through a "home owner grant," by the Social Credit government.

Big Firms Aren't Big, Bad Wolves

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadians, M. J. Foley said Monday, will have to get rid of the notion that big companies are big, bad wolves.

"The public distrusts big corporations seemingly because they are big," he told the annual dinner of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce.

"I know it is part of the folklore of children's stories that all giants are cruel and everything that is big is also big."

"But it is dangerous to carry this folklore into adult life, because without any doubt many big companies will have to get still bigger if they are going to meet successfully the economic challenges of the future."

Mr. Foley is president of B.C.'s biggest forest company, Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

The tasks companies would have to undertake in the future and the problems to be solved would be too large for "small scale solutions," he said.

One-Pound Baby Born in B.C.

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP)—One of the smallest babies ever born in British Columbia is holding her own in hospital here.

The girl, born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hobbs, weighed just over one pound.

Union Returns Smythe

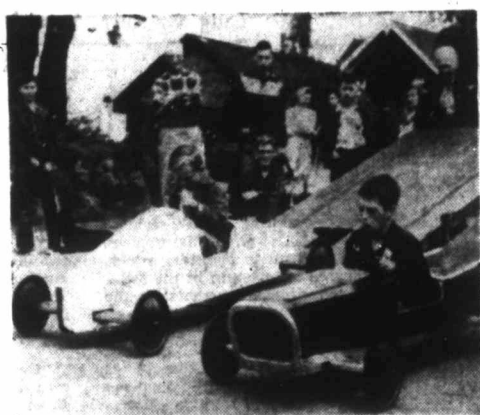

DUNCAN—George Smythe has been re-elected president of Local 180, International Woodworkers of America, for his fourth year.

He was returned with Edwin Linder, Ladysmith, financial secretary for the last 12 years.

They were installed Sunday by Claude Ballard, third vice-president, of IWA International from Portland, Ore. Fred Fieber, third vice-president of regional council No. 1, at Vancouver, was also present.

Other members of the executive are Lorne Johnston, Duncan, first vice-president; Lorne Atchison, Cayuse Camp, second vice-president; George Zizac, Ladysmith, third vice-president; Robert Bourchard, Ladysmith, recording secretary; Leonard Baker, Cayuse Camp, conductor; Ross Davis, Duncan, warden, and Bert Schofield, Ladysmith, trustee for three years.

Ops Township in Victoria County, Ontario, was named from the Latin word meaning riches or abundance.

Soap Derby To Be Held

CHEMAINUS — It looked like soap box races for this year would be abandoned, until yesterday when 12 young and enthusiastic drivers filed papers to take part.

And nine of them were in the monthly eliminations that made the races here so "different" from other soap box racing areas.

"It sure looked like there was going to be a flop this year," said Tom Cook, president of the Chemainus Soap Box Club.

The club has produced two Western Canada soap box champs during the last four years.

"We keep interest up during the summer by having a race a month," said Mr. Cook, Sunday's was the first of the year. "Most other towns have just the one final. We feel that the boys go to a lot of work, so to keep up their interest we have races once a month."

A representative of the group will enter the races at Nanaimo May 23. The winner goes to the Western Canada Soap Box Club event at Mission on July 1.

Winner competes in Akron, Ohio, in the fall.

Freight Service Starts On Alberni-Tofino Road

PORT ALBERNI—First scheduled general freight service on the West Coast Road got under way Monday night when the newly-formed Long Beach Transport Ltd. started a tri-weekly run.

The service will involve access restrictions on the Alberni-Tofino highway opened last September.

Loran K. Jordan is president of the company, with Roy Biggs as secretary-treasurer, while directors are Bob and Dave Barr of Tofino.

Two trucks, licensed to carry 12 tons each, have been purchased for the run.

West to east trips will be direct from Tofino-Ucluelet area to Nanaimo, but return schedules will permit freight to be picked up in the Alberni Valley for transport to the west coast.

Mr. Jordan said that the company's truck will be carrying commodities of all kinds for the west coast settlements and will pick up "whatever we can get" for the trip out to the east coast.

The Alberni-Tofino road, built jointly by the B.C. government and two forest industry firms, is open to traffic from 5 p.m. until 7 a.m. on weekdays and from Friday at 5 p.m. until Sunday 7 a.m. on weekends.

Ucluelet Gets Tons of Fish

Three and a half million pounds of fresh caught fish, mostly salmon, was delivered to Ucluelet's five fish-buying camps last year. These figures make Ucluelet the third largest fishing centre on the B.C. coast, being surpassed only by Prince Rupert and the combined fish plants of Vancouver and New Westminster.

Over 400 fishing vessels, the majority salmon trollers, but with a sprinkling of gillnetters and halibut boats, are currently based at Ucluelet. In the past, all fish landed at Ucluelet have been handled on the floating fish-buying camps, and the catch taken to Vancouver or elsewhere by fish packers.

Two of the larger companies now plan on building shore installations, when the fish will be shipped by truck.

Long Beach

Crabs Sent Directly To Seattle

Crabs caught in the Long Beach-Tofino area, now the most prolific region for this species of shellfish in lower British Columbia and State of Washington waters, will soon be shipped to Seattle direct by truck, via the new Tofino-Alberni road.

Long Beach Shellfish Company has equipped its trucks with a swinging boom for raising the live crab boxes from their pens, and special bulkheads to keep the crabs in perfect shape during transit.

Trucks will leave the west coast in the evening and arrive at Seattle the following morning, a saving of two days compared with shipping by water. First shipment will be made next week.

Music Exams Begin June 6

Examinations for the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto will be held at Holyrood House from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily between June 6 and June 23.

Miss Margaret Miller Brown will be in charge of examinations between June 6 and 18; Mrs. Clara S. Baker, speech arts, June 13; George Lambert, singing, June 15, and Albert Pratt, violin and instruments, June 23.

May Never Be Revived

Mayor to Oppose Secrecy In Council

Short Shrift Given Royal Theatre Plan

Mayor Percy Scurrah's comment yesterday on the offer to sell the city the Royal Theatre for use as a civic auditorium was terse and to the point.

Famous Players of Canada offered to sell the 48-year-old building to the city, Ald. Austin Curtis disclosed last week, and assistant city engineer Roderick Clack said it would cost more than $1,000,000 to duplicate today. Proposed price was not stated.

Just back from a municipal convention in Chicago, Mayor Scurrah gave short shrift to the proposal.

"It would be totally inadequate as an auditorium," he said. "That's my opinion."

Municipal Meeting

Scurrah to Open Tax Share Issue

Mayor Percy Scurrah will "get the ball rolling" at a Vancouver Island municipal meeting in mid-June, he said yesterday, on a suggestion that municipal governments should have a share of income tax.

"As a right, not as a hand-out," he emphasized.

TIME TO TALK

The idea, he said, should be explored at a federal-provincial municipal conference planned in Ottawa this summer.

Home from an international meeting of mayors in Chicago, Mayor Scurrah said the unanimous opinion of Canadian municipalities was that "there must be some readjustment or reallocation of the tax dollar because of the influx of people into the metropolitan areas."

BIG SHIFT

It was predicted, he said, that in another 15 or 20 years 80 per cent of the population would be living in urban areas.

"The great majority, and an increasing amount, of income tax is coming from urban municipalities, and in view of their need, why should they not be entitled to a definite share of that tax?"

Saanich Culling For Rats

A rodent control program will be launched in Saanich on June 1.

The program is to be paid for by the municipality and administered by the Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Unit.

Recent extermination was recommended to the municipality earlier this year after residents complained of seeing increased numbers of rats.

Diversion Of Ferry Protested

GANGES — A telegram was sent to Premier Bennett from the Salt Spring Island Businessmen's Association and the Chamber of Commerce protesting the diversion of the motor vessel Motor Princess from the Fulford-Swartz Bay run for service in the outer islands.

Deterioration in the transportation service to and from Salt Spring Island would result from such a move and Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi will be requested to meet with a delegation from here before the summer ferry schedule becomes final, said C. R. Horel, chairman of the businessmen's group.

A step toward committee secrecy taken by city council last week in Mayor Percy Scurrah's absence will run into strong mayoral opposition when and if it comes up again.

"I certainly will be voting against it," the mayor said yesterday. "I sure will!"

THIRD READING

A bylaw which would exclude reporters from committee meetings except by invitation was introduced Thursday by Aldermen Rev. J. L. W. McLean and Hugh Ramsay, and was given third reading. One more reading is needed for final approval.

But:

● It may not properly have got past second reading. Council's procedure bylaw requires a two-thirds majority for passage at second reading, and the vote was 5-3. Aldermen Arthur Dowell, Geoffrey Edgelow and Austin Curtis opposing the bylaw.

City Clerk M. F. Hunter advised council of the requirement, but City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady challenged his advice, contending the requirement did not hold in this particular case. This point still had not been settled yesterday.

● Ald. Elmer McEwen, who opposed the secrecy move in debate but nevertheless voted for it, said yesterday he had voted for it so that it could be discussed. If he had voted against it, it could not have reached the discussion stage.

Although he would not commit himself on his actions at the next meeting, this leaves the possibility that the proposed bylaw will be defeated 5-4 if and when it comes up again.

Farm Boy Wins Driving Tourney

DUNCAN — A 17-year-old high school student who practiced driving on farm vehicles won the Jaycee safe-driving rodeo here Sunday.

Gordon Lennox, 17, won the driving award after a three-hour contest among 12 young drivers.

His score for the written and driving tests was 421 of a possible 500.

Second prize went to Gary Mangelsen, with 413. Third was David Batty with 381.

Lennox will represent Cowichan in the B.C. Jaycee rodeo at Vancouver later this summer.

ALBERNI — Driver and five passengers in a car which crashed off Great Central Road escaped injury although, according to RCMP, roof of the vehicle was smashed in.

The car, driven by Milan S. Mikulic, Kennedy Lake, apparently missed the turn just west of Sprout Falls Bridge. Damage was estimated at $400.

In another weekend accident, a car driven by a juvenile went off Kitsukus Road, struck a log, crashed through the windshield, struck the back of the seat and the inside of the car roof but driver and passenger escaped uninjured.

PORT ALBERNI — Mrs. Gertrude Horodenski of Franklin River died in West Coast General Hospital Sunday at the age of 48.

Born in Czechoslovakia, Mrs. Horodenski came to Canada eight years ago.

She leaves her husband, Steve, at Franklin River, and a sister in the old country.

Funeral rites will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Grace Lutheran Church.

NANAIMO — In police court Monday, Winston W. Andrews, Nanaimo, 26, was fined $15 for driving across the white line and another $30 on a speeding charge. Evidence brought out in court said the youth was drag racing with a teenager on Terminal Avenue.

Joseph Grass pleaded not guilty to a charge of criminal negligence. The charge arose out of an accident in which Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Forrester were injured in February of this year.

Grass said he was guilty of something but not criminal negligence.

He was fined $17.50 for driving with a learner's licence without having someone with him who held a regular licence.

DUNCAN — Dump truck operator David J. Thickett of Langford was fined on two charges of driving a truck with licence plates on it from another vehicle.

"I was just doing as I was told," he explained in court yesterday after pleading guilty. Owner of the truck is Gordon John Ltd. of Victoria, police said.

Police said he was stopped at the government weight scale May 10. It was found that plates on the dump truck then were off a half-ton vehicle. He was stopped and charged with the same offence the following day.

Fine on the first was $25 and $5 costs. The magistrate said the second was "deliberate" and fined him $50 and $5 costs.

PORT ALBERNI — Alvin Robinson, principal of Calgary elementary school, has been elected president of Alberni District Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Others elected: Leo Tetrauli, Bruce Berry, Mike Kolb, Don Nickelson, Bill Barkhausen, Ron Andrew, Jim Coleman and Norm Larson.

NANAIMO — The new headquarters for the British Columbia Automobile Association was opened here Monday. The ceremony took place with the cutting of the ribbon by Ald. John Cook.

Navy Sail-Past 'Cheer Ship' for Governor-General

Governor-General Arrives

Navy Tars Roar 'Hello' to Vanier

By IAN STREET

Governor-General George Vanier stood bareheaded on the exposed bridge of HMCS Fraser for most of the 30-minute fleet review off the Dallas Road waterfront late yesterday while ashore thousands of chilled spectators huddled 'out of the wind.

A 20-knot wind sweeping down Juan de Fuca Strait blew the governor-general's silver hair as he doffed his hat in acknowledgement of the traditional three cheers given by the ship's company as each of the 14 warships of Pacific Command steamed past.

RAIN SQUALL

A rain squall blew up as the Fraser entered Victoria harbor, but half an hour later at 6 a.m. when the warship entered the calm of the Inner Harbor, the colorful scene was bathed in warm spring sunshine.

A 21-gun royal salute was fired by the 5th Independent Medium Battery, RCA, and a 100-man naval guard from Pacific Command was standing stiffly to attention on the Black Ball Ferry dock as the governor-general and Madame Vanier stepped ashore.

SMALL DALS

They were greeted by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, Premier Bennett, Mayor Percy Scurrah and Admiral Rayner and their wives. Governor-General Vanier stood on a small dais while the band of HMCS Naden played the Queen, then he inspected the guard.

The vice-regal party drove to government house where they will be guests during their two-night stay here.

It was a quiet welcome from the several hundred spectators who lined the Inner Harbor in late afternoon sunshine. The first booming shot of the 21-gun salute fired from Belleville Street in front of the flag-draped legislative buildings, sent a flock of pigeons wheeling into the air.

NEW PAINT

The Fraser, resplendent in a new coat of grey paint, flying the blue, personal flag of the Governor-General and the red and gold flag of the naval board at her masthead, was preceded by two small service tugs as she approached the dock.

Earlier, on the Dallas Road waterfront from Ogden Point to beyond Ross Bay cars were parked on both sides of the road. Spectators huddled in side for warmth or in the protection of bushes along the cliff's edge which broke the force of winds gusting up to 30 miles an hour.

SMALL KNOTS

Small knots of spectators standing in the open quickly headed for home as the last warship saluted the Fraser. Overhead roared Neptune bombers of 407 maritime patrol squadron based at Comox RCAF station.

In Vancouver the vice-regal party boarded the Fraser in a rainstorm. The sun broke through the clouds as the ship with three escorting destroyers—Assiniboine, Skeena and St. Laurent—neared Active Pass.

ADMIRAL VIEW

En route the Governor-General and Mrs. Vanier went to the upper deck to admire the view as the warships traversed Active Pass and both were impressed.

"Isn't this exciting," the Governor-General said, "I feel like a child enjoying it for the first time."

Mrs. Vanier was equally excited. "It's worth being Governor-General just to enjoy this trip," she exclaimed.

For Governor-General

Official Welcome Open to Public

The public is invited to attend official welcoming ceremonies for Governor-General George Vanier in front of the legislative buildings this morning.

Spectators are asked to be in their places by 10.15 a.m., a government spokesman said. Arrival of the vice-regal party is timed for 10.30 and both Premier Bennett and the governor-general are scheduled to make brief speeches.

Coronation On Friday

Esquimaux May Queen Sandra Smith will be crowned in ceremonies Friday at 6.30 p.m. at Gorge Park, Coun. E. L. DeCosta, party's committee chairman, announced yesterday.

In the presence of the 1959 queen, Margaret Francis, Queen Sandra will be crowned by Mrs. A. C. Wurtele, wife of the reeve.

Coun. James Bryant will be master of ceremonies in a program which will include performances by school children of the municipality.

More than 2,000 children from local elementary schools will attend the ceremonies which have been combined with the annual IODE Empire and Citizenship Day ceremony.

This will be followed by an official civic welcome for the governor-general at city hall starting at 11 a.m.

Mayor Scurrah will present Governor-General Vanier with an illuminated address of welcome on a special flag-draped platform in front of city hall.

In the afternoon at Government House there will be an investiture. Among those receiving awards will be Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross who will get the Silver Wolf Scouting award. British Empire Medal (civil division) will go to two RCMP officers from the Interior. Const. Alvin Thomas Millhouse and Const. Hugh Dickson Bowyer.

The BEM award for gallantry will also go to Cecil Bingham of Surrey, B.C., and Arthur Ernest Lewis of Dease Lake, B.C.

In the evening the governor-general and Mrs. Vanier will be guests of honor at a private dinner party at Government House.

Welcome to Victoria

Warm welcome was given by smiling Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross as Governor-General George Vanier stepped ashore at Inner Harbor. Also on hand to greet vice-regal party were Premier Bennett, Mayor Scurrah, Rear-Admiral Rayner, and their wives.—(Colonist photo.)

Rise at 4.40 a.m. To See Satellite

Early risers had a chance to see Russia's latest space vehicle over Victoria this morning, and they'll have another opportunity tomorrow—at 4.40 a.m. PDT.

The giant satellite will be seen tomorrow—weather permitting—for the space of about two minutes as it flashes across the sky, starting low in the southwest and remaining visible until it reaches a point almost overhead.

Officials at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich said it should be seen easily with the naked eye. The satellite was scheduled to put in an appearance today at 4.17 a.m. PDT and remain visible for about a minute as it travelled northwards from a point low in the southeast sky.

Sports Day May 27

Elementary and senior high schools in Greater Victoria will hold their annual interschool sports meets May 27.

Junior high schools will hold their sports meet June 1 at Macdonald Park. Senior high sports will be held at Victoria High School.

Gloom Grips World as Leaders Square Off

LONDON (Reuters) — The world waited anxiously Monday night as the Paris summit talks threatened to explode into failure over the Soviet-American quarrel about spy flights over Russia. Officials and others here and in capitals throughout the world expressed their regrets at the clash—and their hopes that the long-awaited talks would continue despite it. A wave of gloom gripped Paris as crowds of citizens going home from work Monday night gathered outside newspaper stands reading headlines. Their faces were anxious. Similar scenes had not been seen since the Korean War began. The official mood was sombre in Bonn in view of the dangers over Berlin if the conference failed.

A commentator in Communist East Berlin said Russia had made no threat or ultimatum but merely a "justified demand." "Either there will be honorable negotiations or none at all," he added.

Even before the blowup, pessimism about the East-West conference had been expressed widely in the wake of reports on the "tough" line Soviet Premier Khrushchev took Sunday during the preliminary talks in the French capital.

British newspapers were plunged into gloom in Tuesday morning editions. (See picture below.) The right-wing London Daily Mail says if the conference fails "it will be because Mr. Khrushchev wants it to." The Conservative London

Daily Telegraph says "The ugly possibility must now be faced: That those Western leaders who argued for a change of Western attitudes to the Soviet Union, and a jettisoning of the Dulles policy of toughness, may have badly miscalculated."

Frantic Talks Go Into Night

PARIS (UPI)—Nikita Khrushchev threatened today to return to Moscow later in the day unless President Eisenhower "recognizes that the U.S. made a mistake in violating our frontiers."

PARIS (UPI)—Great Britain undertook the desperate role of peacemaker last night to save the summit conference, threatened with collapse in its opening hours by Premier Nikita Khrushchev's "insulting" attack on President Eisenhower and the United States.

After hearing Khrushchev cancel his invitation to Eisenhower to visit Russia because of the U-2 spy plane incident and threaten to stage a walk-out, Eisenhower accused the Soviet premier of coming all the way to Paris just to sabotage the conference.

There were unofficial reports that ever since its arrival Saturday, Khrushchev's plane had been ordered refuelled and ready for return to Moscow tomorrow.

FRANTIC EFFORT

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan undertook a frantic round-robin series of meetings with all of the other Big Four leaders in the attempt to save the conference and it was reported that Khrushchev after a 1½-hour private conference had given him a statement to be delivered to Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle in the morning.

Eisenhower was openly angry over Khrushchev's outburst over the U-2 spy incident. At one point he appeared disgusted when the Soviet premier, an atheist, exclaimed, "As God is my witness, my hands are clean and my soul is pure" when it came to espionage activities.

FRIENDLY TALKS

Macmillan conferred for more than 1½ hours with Khrushchev in the Soviet embassy last night. A British spokesman said they would meet again today after the Big Three western leaders' get-together at 2 a.m. (PDT).

When he left, he was escorted to the door by Khrushchev, Soviet defence minister Rodion Y. Malinovsky, and ambassador Sergei Vinogradov. Khrushchev shook hands with Macmillan on the doorstep.

Their handshake was a striking contrast to the coolness Eisenhower and Khrushchev displayed toward each other. They did not shake hands either at the beginning or the end of the Big Four meeting this morning.

ILL-ATEASE

A member of the U.S. delegation said Khrushchev, seated at Eisenhower's right, seemed ill at ease and tense as he delivered his 40-minute tirade. Eisenhower sat poker-faced throughout.

Eisenhower left his plans in abeyance and had not yet decided whether to try to continue the conference or go home, although he said he preferred to remain in Paris.

The Western Big Three scheduled a meeting this morning but a planned lunch including Khrushchev as a guest was cancelled.

American officials said

Resist, Canada Urges

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canadian leaders yesterday urged the Western Big Three to resist Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's "bellicose" attempts to break up the Paris summit meeting at its outset.

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, backed by opposition spokesmen, took sharp exception to Khrushchev's threat to quit the Paris meeting unless President Eisenhower apologized for the U-2 spy plane incident.

Diefenbaker called the Soviet premier's action "intimidation." Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson termed it "an apparently brutal ultimatum."

Both Diefenbaker and Pearson said world hopes demanded that the meeting not break down. Socialist House Leader Hazen Argue called for an end to "spying, threatening and stalling."

Five-Ton Satellite Dead On

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russian scientists said their space satellite was dead on course Monday night, a glowing beacon in night skies as it encompassed the globe every 91 minutes. (See Page 34.)

The equipment-jammed control cabin with its dummy pilot was flashing back information and paving the way for the first manned space flights, they said.

The nearly five tons of satellite ranged between 134 and 230 miles above the earth's surface, whirling over major cities of the west with clockwork regularity.

Still unanswered, however, was when the Soviet scientists will release the pressurized cabin for its flaming re-entry into the earth's heavy atmosphere.

A Russian scientist visiting England said Monday the release could be expected within days.

The satellite, launched Sunday on the eve of the Paris summit talks, dominated the news in Monday's edition of the Communist newspaper Pravda.

It contrasted the peaceful aims of the Soviet space experiment with the "aggressive" nature of the American espionage flight over the Soviet Union May 1.

Water Flown To Flood Area

FOLEYET, Ont. (UPI) — Health officials yesterday ordered residents of this flood-stricken town not to drink the community's water supply and fresh water was flown in from Timmins, Ont., by ever-shuttling planes. (See other flood stories on Page 3.)

ADLAI STEVENSON

Spy 'Fiasco' Gets Blame

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adlai Stevenson Monday blamed the collapse of the summit meeting in Paris on American mishandling of the spy plane incident.

Stevenson said "this whole fiasco discloses the painfully precarious state of our relations, the uneasiness in the world — the rapidity with which the situation can deteriorate with frightening implications."

"We have blundered and in effect admitted it."

Stevenson said for the United States first to deny and then admit the U-2 spy flight over Russian territory, and to suggest such flights would continue, left Khrushchev no choice but to protest.

Other U.S. comment:

Sen. John F. Kennedy: "We can hope that the voices of moderation and mutual self-interest in preserving world peace can prevail... (but) Mr. Khrushchev... cannot divide America on partisan lines in matters affecting security."

Sen. Stuart Symington: "The news is most distressing."

Senate majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson: "Khrushchev's price is obviously unacceptable to the United States."

K. Tells U.S.

Pick A New Leader

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev boldly has told American voters to choose a new president.

To that extent, at least, Mr. K and his boisterous personality have become enmeshed in the presidential politics of 1960. (See Page 7.)

President Eisenhower's personal and political prestige seems to be taking a beating in Paris. Khrushchev has suggested that the summit conference be postponed until the American electorate has chosen another president to represent the United States.

These events add up to an unprecedented brush-off of a U.S. president. This political drama is wondering what will be the impact of all of this on the 1960 presidential election.

Cigaret Addict's Diary Now We Try Suppression

Cigaret addict Terry Hammond, along with scores of other Victorians, is trying to kick the cigarette habit with the help of the Colonist's recent series of articles by Arthur King Hammond.

By TERRY HAMMOND
Q-Day minus four.

During the four days which remain before you free yourself of the beastly old cigarette habit you may find yourself increasingly preoccupied with the ordeal ahead.

If this is the case you must practice thought suppression. But before you do, I must point out that thought suppression comes in about a dozen different sizes (Junior Miss to Senior Men's Broad Jump).

If you go all the way with thought suppression you will simply become a babbling idiot and we won't let you play any more.

EASY THOUGHTS

And if you don't go far enough you will only be able to suppress the really easy thoughts like income tax, mother-in-law, garden spading, haircuts, helping-with-the-dishes, etc. and not the harder ones like smoking or girls.

Naturally, if you are going to try to suppress an uppermost thought like smoking you are going to have to have an uppermost thought to take its place.

You can't simply stop thinking about smoking one second and start thinking the next second about how there seem to be more yellow-billed, bandy-legged, Arctic puffins than usual this year.

You have to find a substitute thought which you can rely on to get your teeth into. If you've ever tried getting your teeth into a yellow-billed, bandy-legged Arctic puffin you will know what I mean, and this year's crop is the worst yet.

LOOK AT WATCH
With this year's puffins you couldn't suppress a sudden inclination to look at your watch.

What you have to do is conjure up something which is just as important to you as smoking but which is not smoking.

Probably you can think of a dozen things. I certainly hope you do. Personally I have racked my brains and I am unable to come up with a single one.

But I haven't; ven up... all the time I am racking my brains I am not really thinking about smoking. I am just proving to myself how nothing seems to compare with it in importance.

Our Taxes Cut to $1 Sacred Tells Prairies

NEUDORF, Sask. (CP)—Herb Bruch, Social Credit member of the British Columbia legislature for Esquimalt, says most home-owners in British Columbia pay only $1 in municipal tax.

Mr. Bruch told a public meeting here Friday night that this low tax is made possible through a "home owner grant," by the Social Credit government.

Big Firms Aren't Big, Bad Wolves

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadians, M. J. Foley said Monday, will have to get rid of the notion that big companies are big, bad wolves.

One-Pound Baby Born in B.C.

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP)—One of the smallest babies ever born in British Columbia is holding her own in hospital here.

The girl, born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hobbs, weighed just over one pound.

"The public distrusts big corporations seemingly because they are big," he told the annual dinner of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce.

"I know it is part of the folklore of children's stories that all giants are cruel and everything that is bad is also big."

"But it is dangerous to carry this folklore into adult life, because without any doubt many big companies will have to get still bigger if they are going to meet successfully the economic challenges of the future."

Mr. Foley is president of B.C.'s biggest forest company, Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

The tasks companies would have to undertake in the future and the problems to be solved would be too large for "small-scale solutions," he said.
